

HUERTA IS SAFE BUT HIS CHANGES FORMER DICTATOR AND FIVE OTHER MEN ARRESTED AT EL PASO AFTER THE FLIGHT OF GEN. PASCUAL OROZCO.

DEEP ANGER SHOWN
BY GENERAL HUERTA

He Made Bitter Speech in Court and Declared That He Wanted to Shoot U. S. Deputy Marshal.

El Paso, July 3.—Victoriano Huerta, one time dictator of Mexico, was in jail here tonight in company with five other men arrested with him today, on fresh charges of conspiracy to violate the neutrality of the United States. Six other men, arrested earlier in the week on similar charges, were at liberty on bonds, but the whereabouts of General Pascual Orozco, was a source of anxiety to federal officials.

Orozco eluded guards at his local residence and disappeared early in the week. He is supposed to have climbed through a back window, dodged the shrubbery, then made his way to an automobile. Reports early tonight had him at various points on both sides of the border, ready to lead armed Huerta followers against the Villa garrison at Juarez. Federal officials pointed out that they really had no information that Orozco would not appear in court here July 12, when his case is called for arraignment. Their charge at his disappearance, nevertheless, was patent.

General Huerta's incarceration was caused by inability to pay bail in addition to the bonds of like amount under which he was released after his first arrest. B. E. Crawford, assistant federal attorney, failed in an attempt to have Huerta's bond set at $100,000.

Lack of bail of $100,000 kept behind the bars also Generals Ignacio Bravo and Jose Delgado—taken with Huerta—and General Eduardo Carranza, J. B. Ratner, Huerta's interpreter, and Enrique Gorostiza, his secretary, arrested earlier in the day. The other alleged conspirators who were released on bonds earlier in the week were Alister, Frank Alderete, Jose Zozaya and Melillo Caravaca.

Huerta showed anger. Today's proceedings were not at all to his liking, and he turned on himself in a speech in the court of Commissioner Oliver. He told the commissioner that he had circumvented different, he would have shot one of the deputy marshals who had taken him to the following affairs: That the representative of the government in this city have without just reason, molested me and my family here. He further stated that he had been arrested here and taken to the United States without just reason and that he had been arrested here and taken to the United States without just reason.

Huerta reiterated and added to this protest when he appeared before Commissioner Oliver. Mr. Crawford had asked that Huerta's bond be fixed at $100,000, which Huerta said he would not pay. He said he would not pay the bond and that he would not pay the bond.

Huerta wanted to shoot. He said he would shoot the deputy marshal who had taken him to the United States. He said he would shoot the deputy marshal who had taken him to the United States.

Huerta was held at Fort Bliss. He was held at Fort Bliss.

Continued on Page Four.

MAYOR TELLS WHY HE VETOED CLUBS

“One Class of Our People as Much Entitled to Club Facilities as the Other,” He Says in Message.

Although there are twenty-one locker club licenses to be considered, a chief of the fire department and two tax assessors to be chosen, in addition to many minor matters that are pending, it is probable that general council will hold only a short session Tuesday for the transaction of business. The postponement will be caused by the fact that the Fourth of July will be celebrated this year on Monday.

The status of the locker club situation is about the same as it was two weeks ago, when general council was first called to take action on the report of the police committee, which was favorable on all applications for locker club licenses.

Mayor Woodward has vetoed five licenses granted by general council last week and prepared a short message bearing on the subject, in which he claims that only the “upper classes” have been granted licenses and that “one class of our people is as much entitled to club facilities as the other.” He further says that “what is good for one is good for the other, and what is bad for one is bad for the other.”

Will File New Applications. Rather than take a chance on general council overriding the mayor's veto, it is said that the five clubs will file new applications to be considered at a special meeting of the police committee Monday. The five clubs are the Capital City Transportation Club, University, Turner Verein and Standard Club. A favorable report by the police committee is expected.

Last Monday council sent back to the committee the applications for the Capital City Transportation Club, University, Turner Verein and Standard Club.

Continued on Page Four.

LOS ANGELES WAITS FOR COMING OF THE ELKS

Californians Will Back Atlanta in Fight to Secure the Next Grand Lodge Meeting.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 3.—(Special.) The Atlanta Convention bureau opened headquarters at the Hotel Clark here on July 1 preparatory to hosting Atlanta for the next convention of Elks that meets here on the 12th. The entire city has taken on holiday appearance.

Monroe, Ill., Welcomes B. P. O. E. is embosomed in glittering letters from the hotels, stores and office buildings. Everything is bedecked in purple and white, with the American flag flying as a leading favorite. Our buttons are in evidence everywhere. If Los Angeles could decide this great convention we would win hands down.

I believe every hotel clerk in Los Angeles is boasting for Atlanta as hard as I am. They are anxious to return some of the favors extended them during the recent Elks' convention.

Burt Roberts, clerk of the Registration and Transportation company, today assigned Atlanta a space at headquarters to distribute souvenirs. Our mammoth 11-foot photo of Atlanta will greet every visitor upon arrival. Spaces will also be given San Francisco and Los Angeles to distribute exposition.

A great ovation will be extended the Atlanta special. They will be met at the depot by the white squadron of the drill team of Los Angeles. All hotels are booked for enormous crowds and features are announced for each day.

Pasadena-Glendale day; Wednesday, Santa Monica Bay; Wednesday, Midsummer floral dream; Thursday, San Diego day; Saturday, Redondo Beach day. A special feature will be to give all the guests an automobile ride at any time during the day, thereby giving the visitors a view of the beauties of the Atlanta of the southwest. Trains en route to Los Angeles passing through Santa Barbara, Riverside, Redlands and Pasadena will be met by brethren from these lodges and provided with souvenirs, fruits and flowers in profusion.

Six delegates from the Atlanta lodge of Elks left Saturday on a special train for the annual convention of the Atlanta Elks, which meets in Los Angeles, Cal., July 12.

GAFFNEY'S HELD FOR FRIEND'S KILLING

Lee Redmond Killed in a Gainesville Store—F. L. Smallwood, Placed in Jail, Declares He Is Innocent.

Gainesville, Ga., July 3.—(Special.) Lee Redmond lies dead in an undertaker's chapel with a pistol ball through his abdomen and his friend, F. L. Smallwood, is in jail charged with the killing as the result of a fatal shooting mystery here tonight which the police have so far been unable to unravel.

A corner's inquest was held, but adjourned without a verdict at a late hour after examining a number of witnesses.

Both Redmond and Smallwood were known as substantial citizens. Gainesville, both members of the Candler House Guards and supposedly good friends.

Redmond was found dying in the rear of Brice & Co.'s store a little before 10 o'clock. Smallwood denies the shooting, saying that Redmond came into the store and staggered up against him, saying that he had been shot.

Smallwood gave the alarm, and sent clerk in the store for physicians. When the dead man were found on a mattress, the police arrived and found the wounded man nearly dead when medical assistance arrived and breathed his last soon after.

A pistol, said to have been Smallwood's, with an exploded cartridge in it, was found in a safe in the store. On the dead man were found an automatic pistol and a pair of metal knuckles. The pistol was loaded, the magazine full of cartridges and one cartridge in the barrel of the gun.

Smallwood is considered a man of good character and has a wife and child. Redmond also has a good reputation. He leaves a wife and two children. Both men are well known in the city.

A large crowd gathered outside the corner's office and was disappointed when it was learned that no verdict had been reached.

RUSSIANS RETREATING ON AN EXTENDED FRONT

Grand Duke Nicholas Must Soon Do Some Hard Fighting or the Approaches to Warsaw Will Be Left Unprotected.

London, July 3.—Although the retreating Russian armies are considered as yet to be practically intact, the growing impetus of the Austro-German advance is such that a decisive Russian defeat seems inevitable, according to military experts, unless the entente powers initiate a powerful diversion on the Russian front. Some of the most conservative British newspapers assert this alone can compel Germany to withdraw men from the east, thereby, perhaps, a sudden shortage of high explosives, the supply of which will flow to the French front, will be available.

WARSAW MENACED BY TEUTON DRIVE. Neither north of Lemberg, Galicia, nor southeast, do the Russians appear to be trying to offer serious resistance, but unless the approaches to Warsaw are to be left unprotected, military observers say, the forces of Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief, must soon do some, stubborn fighting over the southern Poland frontier, while his extreme left in Galicia must match this in rapid retirement if it is to avoid a critical predicament.

Today's official statements from Vienna and Berlin chronicle nothing but successes for their arms. The German statement, gained from the German press, regarding the capture of the town of Lubanka, in the Austro-German advance, also have advanced in pursuit of the Russian forces in the Zlota Lipa section of Galicia.

Petrograd admits the retirement of the Russian forces in the Zlota Lipa section of Galicia. The retreat is explained as the result of the retrograde movement of the Russian forces. The German statement, gained from the German press, regarding the capture of the town of Lubanka, in the Austro-German advance, also have advanced in pursuit of the Russian forces in the Zlota Lipa section of Galicia.

HARD FIGHTING ON WEST FRONT. Fighting on the western front has been especially severe in the Argonne forest, where the German advance is in command of the Teutonic forces. The German advance is in command of the Teutonic forces. The German advance is in command of the Teutonic forces.

RUSSIA PREPARES AGAINST INVASION. The present alignment of the Russian forces engaged in Galicia and the Russian advance is in command of the Teutonic forces. The German advance is in command of the Teutonic forces. The German advance is in command of the Teutonic forces.

AGAINST SHOOTING. An authoritative statement of the Russian forces engaged in Galicia and the Russian advance is in command of the Teutonic forces. The German advance is in command of the Teutonic forces. The German advance is in command of the Teutonic forces.

MORGAN WALKED UP TO ASSASSIN. Alarmed by the shout, Mr. Morgan and his wife left the dining room by another door, entered a rear hallway and went upstairs. They found nothing in the hallway, but the door to the front hallway was closed and the door to the front hallway was closed.

Continued on Page Two.

Man Who Shot Morgan For the Sake of Peace Also Placed the Bomb In the U. S. Capitol

Under the “Third Degree,” Frank Holt, Who Has Been Instructor at Cornell, Vanderbilt and Other Colleges, Makes a Full Confession.

BOTH THE BULLETS FIRED AT MORGAN PENETRATED HIP

His Physicians Say That Neither Pierced the Abdomen and That Condition of Financier Is Favorable.

MRS. MORGAN WITNESSED SHOOTING OF HUSBAND

British Ambassador Also Present—After Being Wounded Morgan Grappled With Would-Be Assassin—Desperate Struggle on Floor of Dining Room.

Glen Cove, N. Y., July 3.—At 11 o'clock tonight it was definitely established that both bullets fired at Mr. Morgan had penetrated his hip, and that neither had pierced the abdomen.

The first shot struck the right hip and went through in a line almost horizontal, entering and slightly downward. The second shot struck nearer the groin, and was deflected much more sharply downward. The shot came out of the upper leg.

The following bulletin was issued by the physicians: The condition of Mr. Morgan's wounds shows that the bullets did not involve any vital organ. The condition of the patient continues excellent.

PISTOL IN HAND, DYNAMITE IN POCKET. Mr. Morgan was overpowered by Morgan and Henry Fiske, the butler in the Morgan household, who grappled with him in the hallway. He was locked up in jail here, and from his cell issued a written statement saying that he had injured himself with a pistol.

Another loaded pistol was found in Holt's pocket and more dynamite was in a suit case which he had taken to the Morgan house. In addition there were numerous newspaper clippings in the suit case, all bearing on the European war.

STATEMENT MADE ABOUT SHOOTING. An authoritative statement of the shooting of Mr. Morgan here today after many conflicting reports had been circulated, says: “I called on Mr. Morgan home at 9 o'clock, while Mr. and Mrs. Morgan were at breakfast. Fiske, the butler, answered Holt's ring at the door. Holt handed the butler his card, telling him to inform Mr. Morgan that I had called. As the butler started back through the hallway, Holt slipped a package from his pocket and pressed it against the butler's stomach.

“See this suit case,” he demanded. “I have another one.” The butler, pressed by the muzzle of the weapon, backed into the hallway. Holt following. As the front door closed behind him, the butler realized the determination of the assassin, and spoke in a loud voice, so that Mr. Morgan might hear, “Mr. Morgan is in the library.”

Continued on Page Two.

Free Tea To Constitution Want Ad Readers. Turn to Page 5 Today and read how you may receive a half-pound package of Heekin's Iced Tea absolutely FREE. Keep your eye on The Constitution Want Ads!

SHOP IN THE CONSTITUTION BEFORE YOU SHOP IN THE STORE.

Read the Advertising before you go down town.

Read the Advertising before you go down town.

Read the Advertising before you go down town.

Read the Advertising before you go down town.

Read the Advertising before you go down town.

Read the Advertising before you go down town.

Read the Advertising before you go down town.

Read the Advertising before you go down town.

Read the Advertising before you go down town.

10

—

11

11

11

11

IN ATLANTA'S SOCIAL REALM NEWS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Engagements

Conducted
By ISMA DOOLY

A RECENT BRIDE

Home Photo by Lenny.

TAYLOR-BAGLEY.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gunn, of Macon, announce the engagement of their sister, Mrs. Margaret Gunn Taylor, to Mr. Henry Clay Bagley, of Atlanta. The marriage will take place early in August, and will be witnessed only by the members of the immediate families. No cards. The wedding will be one of the most social interest. Mrs. Taylor has many friends throughout the state, and Mr. Bagley is one of Atlanta's most prominent citizens. He has large interests here and in Oglethorpe, Ga.

CAWTHON-ROGERS.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude M. Frederick announce the engagement of their sister, Miss Dixie Cawthon, to Mr. D. Fred Rogers, the wedding to take August 11.

MASON-HARDIN.

Mr. Loto Mason announces the engagement of his sister, Miss Jessie Mason, to Mr. Hammond Hardin, of New York city, formerly of Atlanta. The wedding will take place early in September at home. No cards. Miss Mason is a charming young woman who has endeared herself to a large circle of friends. Mr. Hardin holds a responsible position with the New York Central railroad, and is a graduate of the Technological school in Atlanta.

SQUIRES-GOODMAN.

Mr. and Mrs. James Howard Squires announce the engagement of their daughter, Lily May, to Mr. Luther Burton Goodman, the wedding to take place in August.

JONES-ILER.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Porter Jones announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Gertrude, to Mr. George Arthur Iler, of Tallahassee, Fla., Ga., the wedding to take place in September, at home in Thomson, Ga.

LOVELACE-SIMMONS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Lovelace announce the engagement of their daughter, Katherine May, to Mr. Walter Marion Simmons, the wedding to take place at an early date.

ROBERTS-WOODWARD.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Pettus Roberts announce the engagement of their daughter, Lucy, to Mr. Daniel Hook Woodward, the marriage to take place the latter part of July. No cards.

BOONE-MCDONALD.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Boone, of Americus, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alma Irene, to Mr. George C. McDonald, of Sumter, the wedding to take place in August.

CRUM-LUMMUS.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Percy Crum, of Montgomery, Ala., announce the engagement of their daughter, Isabel, to Mr. Kenneth Lummus, of Columbus, Ga., the wedding to take place in the early fall.

FORTSON-PEACOCK.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Glenn Fortson, of Columbus, Ga., announce the engagement of their daughter, Glennie Mae, to Mr. John Banks Peacock, the wedding to take place on Wednesday evening, July 14.

HARRIS-BRETZ.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Crowder Harris, of Rockmart, Ga., announce the engagement of their daughter, Katye, to Mr. John Arden Bretz, of Chicago, the wedding to take place in the early fall, at home.

HODGES-MILLER.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hodges, of Rockmart, Ga., announce the engagement of their daughter, Inez, to Mr. Grover Cleveland Miller, of Hickory, N.C., the wedding to take place in August, at home.

Hypocrite Club Dance.

One of the most successful entertainments in the history of the Hypocrite club was the Fourth of July dance given by the members of the club in the main hall of the club on Wednesday night last. Elaborate preparations had been made for the occasion and the result was unique and attractive. Professional landscape gardener was engaged to beautify the club room, carrying out in the decorations a novel blending of the patriotic and pastoral idea. The main reception hall was converted into a summer garden. Golden pillars and silk American flags draped the center of the room. The walls were banked with ferns and waving grasses, and cork corners were arranged here and there. Inverted lights shed a soft radiance over the entire scene. In the main hall room red, white and blue hunting intertwined the pillars and silk American flags draped the walls. Appropriate favors carrying the patriotic spirit were distributed. A large orchestra, concealed behind

Williams-Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard James Williams have issued cards announcing the marriage of their daughter, Ruby, to Mr. Harmon Smith, of New York, on Wednesday, June 30, 1918, at Atlanta, New Jersey.

42 Club.

On account of the illness of Mrs. Whitaker, the 1915 Forty-two club will meet with Mrs. J. B. Brooker, 42 Hill street, on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Sensible Suggestions to Make Your Vacation a Pleasant One

If you are going away don't forget the little things which will add to your sum of comfort.

The following list may remind you of something you may require:

- | | |
|--------------------------|-------------------------|
| Traveling Caps, | Clothes Hangers, |
| Pontoon Pans, | Writing Cases, |
| Monogram or Plain Belts, | Umbrellas, |
| Walking Canes, | Safety Razor Sets, |
| Traveling Sets, | Collar Bags, |
| Flasks, | Cork Cases, |
| Cigarette Cases, | Ingratol Watches, |
| Bracelet Watches, | Toilet Cases, |
| Pocket Openers, | Pipes, |
| | Bridge Whist Sets, etc. |

Possibly you may require something in Jewelry, such as Dress Sticks, Cuff Links, Vest Buttons, Scarf Pins, etc. Call and let us have the pleasure of showing you what fine values we offer.

Write for 160-page illustrated catalogue and booklet, "Facts About Diamonds."

Maior & Berkele, Inc.

Gold and Silversmiths

Established 1837

31 Whitehall St.

Atlanta, Ga.

MRS. WILLIAM H. MERRILL.

Of Eufula, formerly Miss Bertha Moore, of Atlanta. The wedding was a beautiful event of Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh L. McKee.

In the Social Whirl

By Isma Dooly.

"I do not know whether it is more for young women to do too much grooming and primping, or whether it is more for them to be careless in such matters," was the comment of a woman who saw a young girl, scarcely out of her teens, whose face was visibly chalked, and another one a few moments afterward, whose hair needed a shampoo, and whose complexion was rather weather-beaten.

Either extreme is bad, all will agree, but it is a very serious habit for a girl to neglect her appearance. If she is careless when she is young, it is apt to grow upon her, and nobody can forgive a dowdy, untidy woman! Remember, it is the comment of a woman who saw a young girl, scarcely out of her teens, whose face was visibly chalked, and another one a few moments afterward, whose hair needed a shampoo, and whose complexion was rather weather-beaten.

Women who are careless in their appearance are not necessarily economical. On the contrary, they frequently spend more money on their dress than those who are careful. They buy new garments to make up for lack of freshness in themselves. They do not mend their garments when they are in need of it, and they do not act on the old saying that "a stitch in time saves nine."

Since women, these days, spend so much money on their clothes, and more and more the knowledge of economics pertaining to all things are being pushed, I wonder why there can be some suggestion put into the practical course school girls are supposed to take pertaining to their general life equipment.

HAS HAD SIXTEEN NEW GOWNS.

I know of a young woman who, since last April, has had sixteen new gowns, all expensive, and all pretty and becoming. But if she has ever had on one of those dowdy, untidy gowns, or worn the right hat with the right gown, nobody has seen her. She believes that clothes are a great factor in her life, and they are, but she has no idea about the eternal fitness of things. For her and those like her a course in economics pertaining to textile and fabrics of all kinds, their adaptability and a supplementary course as to how women should dress themselves generally on certain occasions, would be a great saving to her father, first, and her husband, later.

Somewhat may suggest that those are things young women should learn at home. Maybe some do, but then there are others—those who wear diaphanous unlined chiffon waists, with very little under them, to church, those who wear trimmed cotton gowns with thread lace, those who wear those who wear frocks, and those who wear feather-trimmed hats with shirtings.

For those who spend money indiscriminately it would be helpful if, when they had some time to read or write, learning rhetoric and grammar and the household arts, they could learn something about how to spend so much of the money that goes for clothes, hats, shoes, etc.

This suggestion comes after hearing a party of clever women, deploring the amount they had spent, money indiscriminately it would be helpful if, when they had some time to read or write, learning rhetoric and grammar and the household arts, they could learn something about how to spend so much of the money that goes for clothes, hats, shoes, etc.

be appropriately decorated; the latest music will be rendered by an orchestra; the dancing will be for the guests, and a number of novelties have been planned.

The regular club chapters will be present. Mrs. J. B. Brooker, of New York, will be the guest of honor. Mrs. J. B. Brooker, of New York, will be the guest of honor. Mrs. J. B. Brooker, of New York, will be the guest of honor.

The ceremony at 6 o'clock was performed by Rev. A. H. Gordon, of Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist Church, and a delightful reception followed.

The bride was charmingly dressed in white satin champagne, trimmed with lace and pearls, and carried by her bridesmaids in a procession of white and pink.

The maid of honor was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

The bride was given in white, and the bridesmaids in white and pink. The bride wore a dainty lingerie dress, and the bridesmaids in white and pink.

Vesper Club Dance.

One of the most delightful dances during the week was the annual Fourth of July Vesper Club dance, which was given by the Vesper club to its members and friends. The occasion was a most enjoyable event, and the dance was a great success.

The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city. The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

The dance was a great success, and the Vesper club was highly complimented. The decorations were in the national colors, and the music was furnished by a band of the city.

LAUNDRY SERVICES FOR YOUR LINENS

MADE ABSOLUTELY sure that when your laundry is returned to you that it is clean. Not merely that it looks clean, but is sanitarially clean. There's a difference.

Let us have your washing here where every precaution is taken in a hygienic manner. Furthermore, your garments will not come in contact with an objectionable class of work.

We operate our "Perfect Service" Dry Cleaning in connection with our laundry plant.

Piedmont Laundry & Dry Cleaning Co.

Both Phones 83 Trinity Ave.

HEMSTITCHING and PICOT EDGEWORK done at

SINGER SHOP

In a most satisfactory way. Machines rented by the month. All makes of sewing machines repaired.

Singer Sewing Machine Co.

701 Whitehall St., Bell Phone Main 1825

STARS OF THE MOVIES

Conducted by L. E. Winchell

THE COMING WEEK AT ATLANTA MOVIES

Forsyth Enters Field as Photo Play House—Regent Almost Ready.

This is a week of stellar attractions at all the moving picture houses and the entrance into the field of two new houses bidding for the patronage of Atlanta enthusiasts.

The Forsyth will set aside vaudeville for the balance of the summer and as an opening attraction will present for the entire coming week the much heralded Universal feature, "Scandal," written by Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley, the authors of "Hypocrites." Four performances will be given each day and seats may be reserved as formerly in accordance with Forsyth policy.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

The Strand starts the week with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy, Billie Ritchie will be shown in "The Curse of Work."

The Grand program is, as usual, exceptionally high class.

The Victoria offers Monday Robert Warwick in "Alias Jimmy Valentine."

The Alpha has engaged for the week the most popular artist that has ever appeared as a photo-play theater entertainer in Atlanta, Billy Beary, "The Party From the South." On Monday, the bill will include Grace Cunard and Francis Ford in "The Smugglers."

At Alamo No. 2, Velma Whitman will be starred in "Her Other Self." Also on the bill is a screaming comedy by Charles Chaplin, "Across the Hall."

With such a feast of good things 'tis indeed hard to choose.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

And in looking around for the real picture, Mr. Wells secured "Scandal," which has created so much interest in the picture world. Just as if the regular policy of the theater was alive, instead of asleep for a short time.

"Scandal" was written by Lois Weber, and she was assisted in the production by Phillips Smalley. "Hypocrites" was written by Miss Weber, and she and Mr. Smalley produced that masterpiece. They both agree, however—and they get just as much money out of it as the other—that "Scandal" is the greatest picture of its time. And reviewers and picture experts agree with the two stars.

The picture was made at Universal City. It had every detail of that wonderful city at its call. Every player on the Universal pay roll was subject to call for service, and every expert in the picture city assisted in making this masterpiece of modern photo-drama.

Miss Weber and Mr. Smalley are in the picture, and they have wonderful roles to portray. Both collapse their best, and "Scandal" is classed as a harder to stop it once it is started, and in the meantime the mischief is done. And nothing but right, that is, briefly, is the theme of "Scandal." The picture shows how easily scandal may be started through an entirely innocent

SCENES AND ACTORS IN THIS WEEK'S BIG PICTURE PLAYS

Left to right: Princess Hassan in "Under the Crescent" series at the Savoy Tuesday; Theda Bara in "The Devil's Daughter" at the Strand; Laura Sawyer in "One of a Million" at the Victoria Wednesday, and Billy Beary, "The Party From the South," this week at the Alpha.

THE ALPHA

ALL THIS WEEK

ENGAGEMENT EXTRAORDINARY

BILLY BEARY

"The Party From the South"

And a High Class Program

5c ADMISSION 5c ALWAYS

The Savoy

Monday—Big Holiday Program

Featuring the King of All Comedians

BILLIE RITCHIE

In a Side Splitting Comedy

"The Curse of Work"

Also Adele Lane, in "The Advisor."

Tuesday—Sixth and Final Chapter of

"Under the Crescent"

Entitled "The Crown of Death"

Wednesday

MARY FULLER

The Universal Favorite in

"The Little White Violet"

Coming, Monday, July 12

Big Double Bill

Episodes 1 and 2 of the Universal Serial

"The Broken Coin"

With Grace Cunard and Francis Ford.

You'll Meet Everybody in Atlanta at The Forsyth This Week, for Everybody Is Talking Scandal

FORSYTH

The Remarkable 5-Reel Broadway Universal Feature

"SCANDAL"

"A Drama You'll Never Forget"

Written by LOIS WEBER, Author of "HYPOCRITES." Produced at Universal City by Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley, Who Play the Leading Roles in the Greatest Photo Drama of Modern Times

"Scandal" Is a Story of the Tragedy of Idle Gossip—Intensely Human, Fascinating and Absorbing, With Nothing That Is Morbid or Distasteful

Order Seats Now—Be Sure You Do Not Miss "SCANDAL"

ferred four times daily at the Forsyth—1 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 and 9 o'clock at night. All seats will be reserved, the balcony seats will be 15 cents and the lower floor 10 cents. Reservations can be made just as people have been reserving seats for years at the Forsyth. The same system will operate just as if the regular policy of the theater was alive, instead of asleep for a short time.

"Scandal" was written by Lois Weber, and she was assisted in the production by Phillips Smalley. "Hypocrites" was written by Miss Weber, and she and Mr. Smalley produced that masterpiece. They both agree, however—and they get just as much money out of it as the other—that "Scandal" is the greatest picture of its time. And reviewers and picture experts agree with the two stars.

The picture was made at Universal City. It had every detail of that wonderful city at its call. Every player on the Universal pay roll was subject to call for service, and every expert in the picture city assisted in making this masterpiece of modern photo-drama.

Miss Weber and Mr. Smalley are in the picture, and they have wonderful roles to portray. Both collapse their best, and "Scandal" is classed as a harder to stop it once it is started, and in the meantime the mischief is done. And nothing but right, that is, briefly, is the theme of "Scandal." The picture shows how easily scandal may be started through an entirely innocent situation, and how easily it is to be deceived by appearance. To save herself from being ostracized even by her own friends, she had to marry a man who was not her own equal. Robert's sister kept alive in her breast the scandalous tales about her sister-in-law. So she kept her eye on her. One day at the seashore she thought she saw Daisy holding hands with a man. If she could have seen the same thing from the opposite side of the beach she would have seen that the hand which was being so rapaciously kissed was not Daisy's at all. The girl who was paying his attentions to one who had a perfect right to receive them, Daisy was merely an innocent bystander. At scandalous as it all the girl was, and it liked best to get hold of more innocent bystanders. In fact, the innocent bystander, the most innocent of all, is the one who is the most easily deceived. In fact, the innocent bystander, the most innocent of all, is the one who is the most easily deceived. In fact, the innocent bystander, the most innocent of all, is the one who is the most easily deceived.

At the Alpha.

Billy Beary, "The Party From the South," has been engaged by Manager Al Fowler as an extraordinary attraction, and will appear afternoons and evenings, next week, in addition to the regular program.

Grace Cunard and Francis Ford will be seen Monday in "The Smugglers' Island."

At the Strand.

All the good things in pictures that have been seen at the Strand contribute to the present magnificent clientele of the famous theater. There are the most popular movies except Atlanta in the every-day gatherings at the theater. They go to the Strand because they know the theater is big and safe and comfortable, and because they know the Paramount and the Vitaphone-Lubin-Bell-Edison-Mutual-Metro-Picture Corporation are the best of the best. They go to the Strand because they know the theater is big and safe and comfortable, and because they know the Paramount and the Vitaphone-Lubin-Bell-Edison-Mutual-Metro-Picture Corporation are the best of the best.

At the Victoria.

Princess Hassan in "Under the Crescent" series at the Savoy Tuesday; Theda Bara in "The Devil's Daughter" at the Strand; Laura Sawyer in "One of a Million" at the Victoria Wednesday, and Billy Beary, "The Party From the South," this week at the Alpha.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

traction and will appear afternoons and evenings, next week, in addition to the regular program.

Grace Cunard and Francis Ford will be seen Monday in "The Smugglers' Island."

In "The Grail" booked for Tuesday, Herbert Hawlinson will present quite a dashy figure in his suit of mail and armor, and Anna Little will look more charming than ever in some wonderful scenes that will be shown in this recently released Lascaine drama.

The drama is a modern application of Tennyson's well-known poem and which actualized the knights of the round in the days of old when the knights were bold.

The fifth story of the "Who Pays?" series, will be shown Wednesday with Ruth Roland and Henry King in the leading roles, and for Thursday, "The Marble Heart," featuring King Baggot, will be the splendid attraction.

In the prologue all of the characters are supposed to be living in the days of Diogenes. The hero, a Greek sculptor, portrayed by King Baggot, is named Pithias. He carves three beautiful female statues at the behest of a wealthy citizen named Georgias. The latter appears and claims the statue, but the sculptor refuses to give them. He declares upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man. He happens upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man. He happens upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man.

At the Alpha.

Billy Beary, "The Party From the South," has been engaged by Manager Al Fowler as an extraordinary attraction, and will appear afternoons and evenings, next week, in addition to the regular program.

Grace Cunard and Francis Ford will be seen Monday in "The Smugglers' Island."

In "The Grail" booked for Tuesday, Herbert Hawlinson will present quite a dashy figure in his suit of mail and armor, and Anna Little will look more charming than ever in some wonderful scenes that will be shown in this recently released Lascaine drama.

The drama is a modern application of Tennyson's well-known poem and which actualized the knights of the round in the days of old when the knights were bold.

The fifth story of the "Who Pays?" series, will be shown Wednesday with Ruth Roland and Henry King in the leading roles, and for Thursday, "The Marble Heart," featuring King Baggot, will be the splendid attraction.

In the prologue all of the characters are supposed to be living in the days of Diogenes. The hero, a Greek sculptor, portrayed by King Baggot, is named Pithias. He carves three beautiful female statues at the behest of a wealthy citizen named Georgias. The latter appears and claims the statue, but the sculptor refuses to give them. He declares upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man. He happens upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man. He happens upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man.

At the Strand.

All the good things in pictures that have been seen at the Strand contribute to the present magnificent clientele of the famous theater. There are the most popular movies except Atlanta in the every-day gatherings at the theater. They go to the Strand because they know the theater is big and safe and comfortable, and because they know the Paramount and the Vitaphone-Lubin-Bell-Edison-Mutual-Metro-Picture Corporation are the best of the best. They go to the Strand because they know the theater is big and safe and comfortable, and because they know the Paramount and the Vitaphone-Lubin-Bell-Edison-Mutual-Metro-Picture Corporation are the best of the best.

At the Victoria.

Princess Hassan in "Under the Crescent" series at the Savoy Tuesday; Theda Bara in "The Devil's Daughter" at the Strand; Laura Sawyer in "One of a Million" at the Victoria Wednesday, and Billy Beary, "The Party From the South," this week at the Alpha.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

traction and will appear afternoons and evenings, next week, in addition to the regular program.

Grace Cunard and Francis Ford will be seen Monday in "The Smugglers' Island."

In "The Grail" booked for Tuesday, Herbert Hawlinson will present quite a dashy figure in his suit of mail and armor, and Anna Little will look more charming than ever in some wonderful scenes that will be shown in this recently released Lascaine drama.

The drama is a modern application of Tennyson's well-known poem and which actualized the knights of the round in the days of old when the knights were bold.

The fifth story of the "Who Pays?" series, will be shown Wednesday with Ruth Roland and Henry King in the leading roles, and for Thursday, "The Marble Heart," featuring King Baggot, will be the splendid attraction.

In the prologue all of the characters are supposed to be living in the days of Diogenes. The hero, a Greek sculptor, portrayed by King Baggot, is named Pithias. He carves three beautiful female statues at the behest of a wealthy citizen named Georgias. The latter appears and claims the statue, but the sculptor refuses to give them. He declares upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man. He happens upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man. He happens upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man.

At the Alpha.

Billy Beary, "The Party From the South," has been engaged by Manager Al Fowler as an extraordinary attraction, and will appear afternoons and evenings, next week, in addition to the regular program.

Grace Cunard and Francis Ford will be seen Monday in "The Smugglers' Island."

In "The Grail" booked for Tuesday, Herbert Hawlinson will present quite a dashy figure in his suit of mail and armor, and Anna Little will look more charming than ever in some wonderful scenes that will be shown in this recently released Lascaine drama.

The drama is a modern application of Tennyson's well-known poem and which actualized the knights of the round in the days of old when the knights were bold.

The fifth story of the "Who Pays?" series, will be shown Wednesday with Ruth Roland and Henry King in the leading roles, and for Thursday, "The Marble Heart," featuring King Baggot, will be the splendid attraction.

In the prologue all of the characters are supposed to be living in the days of Diogenes. The hero, a Greek sculptor, portrayed by King Baggot, is named Pithias. He carves three beautiful female statues at the behest of a wealthy citizen named Georgias. The latter appears and claims the statue, but the sculptor refuses to give them. He declares upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man. He happens upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man. He happens upon Pithias and his term, looking for an honest man.

At the Strand.

All the good things in pictures that have been seen at the Strand contribute to the present magnificent clientele of the famous theater. There are the most popular movies except Atlanta in the every-day gatherings at the theater. They go to the Strand because they know the theater is big and safe and comfortable, and because they know the Paramount and the Vitaphone-Lubin-Bell-Edison-Mutual-Metro-Picture Corporation are the best of the best. They go to the Strand because they know the theater is big and safe and comfortable, and because they know the Paramount and the Vitaphone-Lubin-Bell-Edison-Mutual-Metro-Picture Corporation are the best of the best.

At the Victoria.

Princess Hassan in "Under the Crescent" series at the Savoy Tuesday; Theda Bara in "The Devil's Daughter" at the Strand; Laura Sawyer in "One of a Million" at the Victoria Wednesday, and Billy Beary, "The Party From the South," this week at the Alpha.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

"SCANDAL" INTERESTS ATLANTA

Lois Weber in scene from great picture play which will be offered all week at the Forsyth theater, vaudeville having been suspended in that house for a number of weeks.

A wonderful success when produced and with the opportunity to do greater things in the way of production for pictures, will be a great picture.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

At the Forsyth.

It sounds regular in these days of picture-play fever to know that the Forsyth is going to take a hand in the game for a short time. When Jake Wells looked over the list of available talent for the vaudeville bill for this week, while in New York last week, he simply declared nothing doing. He would not send acts here unless they were of the first sort, hence vaudeville will take a few weeks' vacation, and picture will be the substitute for that time.

At the Regent.

One of the most stupendous features ever filmed will hold the screen at the Regent, "The Eternal City," with Pauline Frederick in the lead part.

At the Strand.

The Strand starts the week Monday with "The Devil's Daughter," which gives Theda Bara, the vampire woman, another opportunity to show her cleverness.

At the Savoy.

Billie Ritchie, the famous comedienne, is coming to the Savoy Monday in "The Curse of Work." This is an unparagoned funny comedy, telling of Billie's adventures as a boot black.

THE NOTES OF THE FILM WORLD

READ
THE CONSTITUTION
MOVIE
PAGE

Behind the Screens

With Britt Craig.

FORERUNNERS.
We will not burden the vast patronage of this peculiar palladium of picture palanques with poetry this week.
We are too tired to write any.
We have just come from a performance of "The Spendthrift," at the Strand.

Floral Fabrications.
"The Garden of Lies."
—Universal Feature.
"The Garden of Love."
—Old Song.

What Went With—

The Mary Pickford frontispieces on magazines?
The man who said pictures would never amount to anything?
Your prize scenarios?
The putting hero?
The train-robbery scene?
The wrist watch?
Kurek! Many Kurek!
"Now that she and her husband are in separate camps, Helen Holmes is playing leading roles and doing her own directing."
Ah! There was a husband for you!

Advice From Addison.
Editor—Dear Sir: I notice a new Essanay picture entitled "Killed in Action." How odd we hear those same sorrowful words in connection with tragedy. Being "killed in action" is what causes so many idlers in the land, and justifies looting. Yours fraternally,
(Signed)
ADDISON AVERBETO ACTIVITY.

Things the Pictures Are Happy Without

Chorus men.
Heavy dialogue.
Vandeville mousologie.
Acrobatics.
Clog dancers.
Plavish the favorites.
Misplaced jokes.
Periodic "light-browns" in the boxes.
Half-naked row.
Bicycle acts.
Haul trapezoids in liquor bands.
"Village maidens" from the East side.
The stage-door johnnie.
But, where is it?
"The House of a Thousand Candles."
No gas! Evidently very quiet and peaceful.

Another Burek!
"The Blindness of Virtue."
—Problem Picture Title.
The answer to virtue's existence.
And Yet—
"The Goddess" Beauty Hate
Revenge
Love
Sex
—Vitagraph Ad.
They say it is different.

Criticisms.

Conducted by Pansy Penitail.

"Sins of the Mothers."
It's a good thing Tricky's mother didn't inherit of gamble. If Tricky had inherited a thirst in proportion to her gambling propensities, she wouldn't have survived the first violent ward of the authorities honored with her presence. Tricky was the peerless gambler. She not only gambled on the horses, played roulette, but on the weather and devoted much time to bridge, but she married young.
The parentally-endowed thirst has it on the case for gambling in this respect: there are no Kealey institutes for gambling. If you do get something out of a good healthy thirst.
Tricky's case is that of a young girl, reared in a convent, whose mother operated an exclusive gambling hall. She inherits her mother's main, disastrous to herself, but most beneficial to the plot, she marries the man who later becomes district attorney on the reform ticket. District attorneys are bad enough. Reform district attorneys have no qualification in polite phraseology.
He said he didn't mind her gambling habits as much as he did her weakness for breaking promises. This was one of the most common points in the picture's composition. The husband was apparently unusual. The husband expressed extreme astonishment at his wife's continuous breakage of promises.
Yet, according to the picture, he had sense enough to be a fairly good attorney.
We were glad to see that her husband

SCENES FROM "THE ETERNAL CITY"

PAULINE FREDERICK STAR OF FEATURE FILM AT MONTGOMERY

The Montgomery theater will present for the entire week of July 4 "The Eternal City," an eight-act play, starring Pauline Frederick.

"The Eternal City" Presented Entire Week at Montgomery

The Montgomery theater has always been known for its strict adherence to their policy of showing the best that can be procured, and in the presenting of "The Eternal City" this week to its patrons, this theater comes up to its customary standard of showing photo-hand was the sort of man who ran for office on the reform ticket. It would have hurt us dreadfully to see a deserving man so painfully mistreated. There are many morals to "Sins of the Mother," one of which is never shoot craps on I. O. U's. Never marry a district attorney with reform principles unless you are prepared to keep all promises, for promises are harder to keep than husbands.

We Meet Hal Reid.
It was our pleasure to chat with the noted Hal Reid one day last week, as he sat in a deep chair in the lobby of the Hotel Ansley just like any ordinary citizen and smoked Palma cigarettes to our added pleasure, he being very liberal with them.
Hal Reid is the author of melodramas by the hundred. He wrote and staged "Prohibition," the big feature that is proving a national sensation, and likewise wrote and directed "Thou Shalt Not Kill," the big Rose Coghlan masterpiece. He is an author, playwright, script writer and picture director.
He looks like the first assistant clerk in the Babylon County Independent bank at Coolidge Corner, except that he wears a silk shirt, a collapsible set of eye-glasses and a Palm Beach, the Palm Beach style having not yet reached Coolidge Corner. You could hardly distinguish Hal Reid from the desk clerks or man behind the cigar counter. He is just plain, ordinary man, like other big men—the more human they are, the bigger.
Hal Reid is about fifty years old, thin, active and high-spirited. He has an air of oversight, and has the slender, elongated build of the nervous race-horse type. He is constantly doing something, and many idlers hurt him more than hard work.
Reid was in the city investigating the Frank case, of which he intends to write an analysis.

films of unsurpassing excellence. It was shown at the Astor theater in New York city and at the Chestnut street theater in Philadelphia, and presented by no less a personage than Daniel Frohman. Thousands and thousands of the very best element in these respective cities have crowded the theaters to their very doors to get a view of this magnificent spectacle.
Owing to the intensely interesting story and the beautiful scenery described in the noted book, the play lends itself admirably to the screen. This remarkable visualization of Hall Caine's masterpiece presents the thrilling incidents and climaxes, the romance and tragedy, the elements of love and betrayal and the beautiful ideals of the original plot, with a wider range and with bolder strokes than were possible in the novel or play, and will, therefore, contribute to the inspiring play its greatest measure of immortality. For the first time such world-famous spots as the Coliseum, Castle of St. Angelo, St. Peter's, the Vatican gardens and other places of great historical interest appear as settings for a motion play.

So much "real tape" had to be sorted in to order to induce the authorities in Rome to allow pictures of the Vatican to be made and the fact that a ban was placed upon the novel when it was published fifteen years ago renders the proverbial nerve of our American producers, nothing short of colossal. All the costumes of the Noble Guard of the Roman Pontiff, of the Swiss and Municipal Guards were made after specimen costumes of these organizations, loaned by the sanction of the highest authorities. There are many imposing pageants, including foremost the pope's jubilee procession, one of the most startlingly original and complete scenic productions of this stirring occasion ever witnessed on the screen.
A gathering of the best actors from the forces of the Famous Players Company, including Mrs. Pauline Frederick, as star, went to London and Rome last July, under the direction of Edwin S. Porter, known as the father of the photo play, having eleven years ago produced the first dramatic story in the moving picture.
Miss Frederick, who was last heard of in "Joseph and His Brethren," and in "Innocent," the Hungarian drama by Arpad Pastor, appears for the first time before the camera.

Her transcendent beauty, art and grace makes the character of Donna Roma a living and breathing impersonation, so wonderfully does she emphasize the charm of the portrayal. The face of a prophet etherealized, so when London was reached Mr. Porter hit upon the English actor, Thomas Holding, who was all that the novelist, the manager and the heroine could demand. In the character of David Rossi he embodies the idealist and the devoted lover of Roma, and as the socialist leader of the working classes his portrayal is splendid.

The curtain goes up on the city of Rome banked against a night sky, its light reflected in the water shimmering at its feet. The story deals with the life of David Rossi, who as a child has been left at the door of a convent. While still a young boy he is adopted by Dr. Roselli and becomes the companion of little Roma, the doctor's daughter. The two children are later separated and the dramatic threads of their lives finally recross in Roma, where David is now a prominent socialist and Donna Roma is the companion of the great and unscrupulous villain, Baron Buvelli.
After various vicissitudes, the troubles of David and Roma vanish, and largely through the influence of the pope, who proves to be David's father, the young couple are left to the contemplation of that eternal city, whose builder and maker is God.
Great credit must be given Hugh Ford, who was the original director when the play was staged with Viola Allen a dozen years ago, for his share in the collaboration with Edwin S. Porter in producing the greatest triumph of the moving picture world. To perfect the production, from first to last, took three months of hard work and cost in the neighborhood of $100,000. This photo-drama will be recorded as one of the most artistic successes of the present day.

WITH THE MOVIES

ALPHA
MONDAY
Grace Cunard and Francis Ford in "Smuggler's Island."

GEM THEATER
MARIETTA, GA.
MONDAY
Universal Features and Comedies.

THE ALSHA
MONDAY
High-Class Photo-Plays.

WITH THE MOVIES

THE ALAMO No. 1
The Little Playhouse With a Big Show.
FIVE REELS DAILY.
MUTUAL MOVIES.
CHAPLIN COMEDIES.

ALAMO No. 2
MONDAY
"Her Other Self"—2-Reel Lubin with Velma Whitman—Chas. Chaplin in "Across the Hall."

THE STRAND
MONDAY
THEA BARR in
"THE DEVIL'S DAUGHTER."

THE GRAND
MONDAY
Paramount Feature.

THE VICTORIA
MONDAY
Robert Warwick in
"Alias Jimmy Valentine."

THE DESOTO
MONDAY
Entire Change of Program.

THE SAVOY
MONDAY
Billie Ritchie in
"The Curse of Work."

THE BONHEUR
DECATUR, GA.
MONDAY
NEW PICTURES EVERY DAY.

MONTGOMERY

ALL THIS WEEK THEATER ALL THIS WEEK

Daniel Frohman Presents a Superb Photo Spectacle of HALL CAINE'S SUPREME NOVEL-DRAMA

THE ETERNAL CITY

WITH THE BEAUTIFUL

PAULINE FREDERICK

In the Character of Donna Roma

ADMISSION
25c
CHILDREN
10c

A powerful and pulsating silent drama, in which all the passion and genius of the original novel are preserved. Produced in Italy and England, under the direction of Edwin S. Porter and Hugh Ford, by the Famous Players Film Company. The presentation of this picture at the Montgomery is the greatest event in the history of photo-drama in Atlanta. Don't fail to see it.

ADMISSION
25c
CHILDREN
10c

THE REASON WE MUST CHARGE 25 CENTS

Mr. R. H. Logan, Manager,
Montgomery Theatre, Atlanta, Ga.

June 14, 1915.

Dear Sir: This is to confirm booking for the week beginning July 5th on Daniel Frohman's production of Hall Caine's masterpiece, "THE ETERNAL CITY" and to further notify you that our operating contract with the producer of this production calls for a minimum admission fee of 25c. Kindly govern yourself accordingly and oblige
Yours truly,
C. E. Spauldine
General Manager.

CET/C

THE VICTORIA

MONDAY

ROBERT WARWICK in "ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE"

Tuesday Edna Mayo and Bryant Washburn in 3-Part Essanay Drama, "Frauds."

WEDNESDAY

"ONE OF A MILLION"

With Laura Sawyer.

Thursday—"The Terrible One"—3-Reel Lubin.

Friday—Julius Steeger in

"THE FIFTH COMMANDMENT"

Saturday—Rose Tapley in 3-part Vitagraph,
"THE LADY OF THE LIGHTHOUSE"

LOOK!! LOOK!!

Owing to the fact that Frank T. Montgomery has no connection of any kind whatever, financial or otherwise, with the Montgomery Theater on Peachtree street, and owing to the further fact that Mr. Montgomery is planning to actively re-enter the motion picture field in Atlanta, the management have decided to change the name of the Montgomery Theater.

Manager R. H. Logan has decided to let the patrons of the theater select the new name, and to that end a contest will be started, beginning TOMORROW MORNING, governed by the following conditions:

Blank coupons will be presented at the box office to each patron of the theater. On this coupon the patron may write the name which he or she suggests, together with the full name and address of the writer. These coupons may be handed in at the box office, or may be mailed to the theater.

The contest will be open until July 15th, when it will be closed. A committee of disinterested Atlanta business men will pass upon the names and select the winning title.

The winner will receive an annual pass to the theater. In the event the name which wins happens to be suggested by several people alike, the names of those who suggest it will be put in a hat and drawn for by a blindfolded child, and the annual pass will be given to the one thus drawn.

No suggestions will be received except those written on the coupons given to patrons.

FINE RECORD IS MADE BY SILVERTOWN TIRES

Harry Grant Goes Full 500 Miles Without Stopping to Make Change.

The winning of the 500-mile Chicago derby and the performance of many of the drivers is another big victory for Goodrich Silvertown cable cord tires. Grant was the 12,000 prize at an average speed of 97.5 miles an hour with his Peugeot equipped with Silvertown.

The ten cars which finished were also equipped with the Goodrich product. These were Porpoosa, Sunbeam, Kirk, Sunbeam, Grant, Sunbeam, Karl Cooper, Stutz, Anderson, Stutz, Almy, Duesenberg, Chevrolet, Delage, Burman, Peugeot, and Joe Cooper, Sebring.

Conditions Are Ideal.
Conditions were ideal, but extraordinary time is in large measure attributable to the wonderful track and the use of Silvertown tires.

Grant made only three tire changes during the entire drive of 500 miles, in spite of the terrific strain due to a high angle of the track at turns. More remarkable still was the record established by Harry Grant, who drove a Sunbeam the entire 500 miles without a single stop. This breaks all non-stop records and affords another proof of the endurance of Goodrich Silvertown cable cord tires, with which Grant's car was equipped.

Previous Record 365 Miles.
The best non-stop record ever previously made was 365 miles, in order to complete his 500 miles without stopping, Grant could not half mile without gasoline. His tires were still in good condition, and it had been necessary for him to have continued on them for many miles.

Contrary to expectations, the race was actually free from accident. Owing to speed of track and high pitch at turns it was predicted drivers would have difficulty in staying on the course but use of Silvertown tires which made steering easy kept accidents from marring the sport.

On Rear Wheels.
First ten cars to finish, with the exception of that driven by Porpoosa, were fully equipped with Silvertown tires. Porpoosa had these tires on the rear wheels of his car and said he could have won if his car had been fully equipped with Silvertown. Almy duplicated his performance at Indianapolis by going through the race without a tire change. Malford also drove the 500 miles without a tire change, and said they were good for another 500. Babcock was another who drove the 500 miles without stopping for tire changes.

The B. F. Goodrich company, Akron, who are also the makers of the famous Goodrich Safety Tires, have the unprecedented honor of having their tires on every winning car as well as every car that finished in the two greatest automobile races ever held in the history of racing.

STUDEBAKER MODELS INTEREST THOUSANDS

Coming Year Expected to Be Greatest Selling Season in Car's History.

It is surprising how much interest is displayed by the general public in the plans of automobile manufacturers relative to new models. This has been very noticeably emphasized the past week by the comment the Studebaker announcement for 1916 has created in numerous cities. Word received from Studebaker branch house managers and dealers over the country is to one effect: that never before has such interest and enthusiasm been shown over new models. Indications are also said to point that the coming year will prove the greatest selling season in the history of the industry.

More than ever the automobile is being used for business purposes, for pleasure and recreation. Horse delivery is a luxury, to a business of even ordinary size. The day seems to be approaching rapidly when every man with what may be considered a surplus income will be the possessor of a motor car. These conditions help toward creating a general public interest in what the manufacturers are doing. The effect of this interest is to develop the new buyers, who make it possible for the quantity producer to lower his prices. A goodly portion of these readers of automobile announcements may not be immediately concerned in the purchase of a car, but their interest indicates that the educational effect may some time produce results.

Each succeeding year has brought more exacting demands from the buyers of cars in way of greater serviceability. Recognizing the insistence for more pulling power, Studebaker has enlarged the bore of the motors in the new models, and made other changes that now produce 50 horse-power in the 18-cylinder motors and 40 in the four-cylinder.

Another effect on the part of manufacturers has been to lighten the line of cars. This is a feature to which Studebaker has also given close attention in the new models. "Vibration" has been greatly reduced and silence secured by increasing the rigidity of the chassis following European engineering practice. The crankshaft has been made lighter, larger ball-bearing and as while the motor bearing is bronze-backed, the rotary balance device at the Studebaker plant makes it possible to see that shafts are properly balanced at critical speeds.

All these improvements have the effect of reducing the wear on a car to the minimum, which naturally means for it greatly prolonged life. A person of sufficient wisdom to gather enough money to purchase a motor car may be reckoned upon as casting about for the greatest value when he buys. All of which make the automobile sections of the newspapers the more attractive to the average reader.

FIRESTONE TIRE OFFICE EMPLOYEES ENJOY FISH FRY

While on a fishing trip last week on the cruiser "Amigo" of St. Simon's Island, E. H. Kelley, of the Firestone tire & Rubber company, hooked a large drum, which came near pulling him overboard. On account of the small hook and line it was necessary to play it carefully and it was about a half an hour before the big fellow was played out and hauled on board. Upon being weighed it was found that the drum weighed the scales at forty-five pounds, and Mr. Kelley immediately expressed his Manager, Willie West, to be divided among the office force.

Mr. Kelley reports that they had rare good luck fishing, catching from 100 to 200 daily of trout, whiting and sheepshead.

JOHN F. TOOLE JOINS WILLYS-KNIGHT RANKS

John F. Toole, pioneer automobile man of the south, has joined the ranks of the Willys-Knight company as superintendent of the Knight division of that concern in the southern states. Toole is probably one of the most able and thoroughly equipped motor car men in the entire country. He has followed the industry from its early stages, and always with marked success. His long connection with the Studebaker company gave him the opportunity to become an expert in the Knight type construction, which he has always been convinced is the motor of the future. Until his recent resignation, John Toole was Atlanta branch manager of the Locomobile company. He takes up his new duties immediately.

BLODGETT IS BUICK'S NEW SALES HEAD HERE

Leading Salesman of Big Auto Company Transferred From New York to Atlanta.

So impressed with Atlanta and with the future possibilities for the Buick cars in this section, was William H. Blodgett about a month ago, when he visited the city, that he requested the company to transfer him from the New York branch, where he was the city sales manager for Atlanta for Buick machines.

Mr. Blodgett is now located here as city sales manager of the Atlanta house, and with his excellent record in the sales organization of the big motor company, coupled with the experience and efficient management of branch manager George D. McCulloch, greater gains than ever are expected to come to the Buick company in this locality. Mr. Blodgett brought his family down recently, and is making his home at the Imperial hotel.

For several years Mr. Blodgett has held the record for the largest sales of cars among the Buick forces, winning the handsome prize year after year offered by the company for this work. He is an untiring booster of the good qualities of Buick machines, and knows their good points from A to Z. He is delighted to be connected with the Atlanta branch, which he declares to be among the very best in the Buick organization.

WILLIAM H. BLODGETT.
New city sales manager for Atlanta for Buick machines.

By the company to transfer him from the New York branch, where he was the city sales manager for Atlanta for Buick machines.

Mr. Blodgett is now located here as city sales manager of the Atlanta house, and with his excellent record in the sales organization of the big motor company, coupled with the experience and efficient management of branch manager George D. McCulloch, greater gains than ever are expected to come to the Buick company in this locality. Mr. Blodgett brought his family down recently, and is making his home at the Imperial hotel.

For several years Mr. Blodgett has held the record for the largest sales of cars among the Buick forces, winning the handsome prize year after year offered by the company for this work. He is an untiring booster of the good qualities of Buick machines, and knows their good points from A to Z. He is delighted to be connected with the Atlanta branch, which he declares to be among the very best in the Buick organization.

GOODYEAR COMPANY MAKES NEW RECORD FOR TIRE OUTPUT

"When the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company built 3,192 automobile tires in one day, back in 1912, setting a world's record in tire production, and a new mark for competitors to aim at, the performance was heralded as a wonderful feat, as indeed it was," says James Taylor, branch manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company.

"But as succeeding events have proved, we were at that time hardly more than setting aside away for the wonderful production which was to follow. Only a year and a half later, Goodyear had gone that doubled the output, and set up a new mark of 11,512, being the first time the company attained a production of more than 10,000 tires in a single day."

"The enormous strides taken by the Goodyear's latest record-breaking feat of building 15,441 tires in one day, establishing another world's record in tire production."

"These tires, laid flat and stacked one upon another, would make a pile more than eight miles. A conservative estimate of their retail value is $100,000, and the output would amount to $2,000,000, which is as great a fortune as was accredited to the Count of Monte Cristo by Dumas."

"It will be but a short time until we will reach a regular daily output of 20,000 tires. The recent announcement of price reductions made by many automobile manufacturers indicates that next season's production of cars will be a record."

"We are making preparations to take care of the enormous increase in tire output for 1916, in anticipation of the floor space, in order that Goodrich dealers everywhere may have tires for their customers."

PACKARD WINNER OF HIGH HONORS AT WORLD'S EXPO.

Latest advice indicates that the Packard awards at the Panama-Pacific International exposition are much more significant than was indicated by the first announcement. The grand prize, which was given to no other automobile company, was awarded by the superior jury for quality of material and workmanship, ingenuity and skill in design and construction, the magnitude of the business represented and the length of time the exhibitor has been engaged in manufacturing.

In addition to the grand prize, the Packard was awarded the first of the three medals of honor. Other exhibitors were the recipients of fifteen gold medals, three silver medals, nine bronze medals and two certificates of honorable mention. The awarding of one of the fifteen gold medals to such a famous car as the Rolls-Royce, of English manufacture is illustrative of the substantial character of the competition.

The honors placed upon the Packard by the exposition have given added impetus to the storm of public approval which has been the lot of the 12-cylinder car recently announced as the "Twain Six." Mr. West, the head of the display of this car at the exposition it was inspected by 25,000 persons.

The room is tidily fitted up with all conveniences. Mr. West, the head of the display of this car at the exposition it was inspected by 25,000 persons.

The innovation of Manager McCulloch is in keeping with the live progressive policy of the big Buick organization, and while he has been the first to set the example in this city, it is believed others will follow his example before a great while.

Chalmers 1916 Cars Here Astounding Values-Astounding Prices

THE Chalmers Motor Company, with its new organization, even greater factory facilities, additional buildings, more men and still more capital, and with a quadrupled production is bringing out for the season of 1916 a series of cars the equal of which have never been offered before.

The Chalmers Company is the only leading manufacturer that is offering a new car for 1916 at a new price—in the medium-price class.

Others have either put out a new car at a higher price, the same old car at the same old price, or the same old car at a cut price.

This new Chalmers is the Six-40 shown below at the astounding price of $1275.

The Light-Six and Master-Six are continued in improved models at lower prices.

Such prices at higher quality than ever before are only made possible by cutting out middleman's profits, buying for cash on definite specifications, utilizing new methods of manufacture and administration, working on smaller profits and greater production.

The Chalmers Motor Company has also inaugurated a new Chalmers Service Plan by means of which we are able to offer gratis to every new Chalmers owner service in the form of an interchangeable service coupon book, good for a definite amount of work—at any Chalmers dealers—anywhere.

Chalmers Six-40 $1275.00

This is the most remarkable motor car that has ever been offered for $1275. It is the lowest price at which Chalmers quality has ever been sold.

It is the only American stock car with valve-in-head overhead camshaft motor, the type that Europe was working on when we stopped production.

It is this type of motor that broke all records for 500 miles at both Indianapolis and Chicago speedway races, going at the terrific speed of 90 miles per hour at Indianapolis and 98 miles an hour at Chicago—the most grueling test of motor car efficiency ever known.

This motor gives the car instant get away, wonderful flexibility, great power and economy. The car rides like a Pullman.

It is the superior of cars that three years ago sold for $3000 or over. Be sure to come in and see it.

Chalmers "Six-48" $1550

Seven-Passenger - - - - -

Chalmers "Master Six" $2175

in either Touring Car or Limousine Bodies at Prices Ranging from - - - $3350

This is the 1916 series of the popular Light-Six declared by thousands of enthusiastic owners to be the most satisfactory motor car they have ever owned. It is light where it can be, strong where it should be. It is the most economical car in America in upkeep cost and admittedly the best car made within $500 of its price.

These models are on exhibition now in our salesroom. First orders will be filled from stock.

H. B. ODELL, Distributor

541 Peachtree St. Ivy 4932
ATLANTA, GA.

"Let Your Next Car be a Chalmers"

A Department Devoted to the Interests of Commercial Travelers, Wholesalers, Manufacturers, Etc.

THE CONSTITUTION'S

First Week in August To Be Merchants Week

Atlanta Jobbers, Wholesalers and Manufacturers Are Preparing Some Merchandising Opportunities for Buyers.

The first week in August, beginning Monday, August 2, is to be a big week for the retail merchants of the south. For they are coming to Atlanta by the hundreds from every corner of the south—to do their fall looking and buying.

And the big wholesalers, jobbers and manufacturers of this city are now laying their plans to offer them some of the rarest and best bargains to be picked up during a whole season.

Not only that, some forms of entertainment and diversion from business will be arranged and announced later, but the main thing—the thing the southern retail buyers are perhaps most interested in—is the merchandising opportunities that will be offered the visitors to the city during the week which begins in the month of August.

No market in the south affords a better opportunity for buying, practically everything needed by the retailer can be secured here, and while the merchants of the south, particularly since the war, have been buying more than ever from nearby home markets, still they are exceedingly bright for a good fall business.

The wholesalers and jobbers of this city ever wide-awake to their interest as well as to the interest of the thousands of patrons whom they serve, have planned a week of bargains for their customers. Every house represented in the big list of Atlanta's commercial industries will have its very best to offer to the buyers, and while there is to be opportunity here before offered elsewhere, the buyers are to be offered something really worth while from the standpoint of good merchandise at low prices. That is what they are anxious to see. There will be compelling interest in the goods offered, especially in dress goods, hats, novelties, hats, millinery, shoes—in fact, every line to satisfy the wants of the visitors.

So now, Mr. Merchant, make your arrangements to be here. Take a little vacation from business, and while having a good time in our city, profit as well by the trip. The Atlanta merchants are expecting you. There will be further announcements made of the plans for the week, but you begin now to make ready for the trip to Atlanta and be here on time to get first pick over the attractive list of goods that Atlanta wholesalers and manufacturers are going to offer you.

Be here Monday, August 2. You will have a good time. You will be welcome. And you will profit by it.

Booming C. H. S. Cigars.
C. H. S. is spending the week in the city, and since his latest trip the big Tampa factory is beginning to feel the effects of his visit. Some of the largest orders are now coming into the factory from the territory, as well as a number of orders from the west, notably Kansas City, Oklahoma, Memphis and other points.

Big June for Cigars.
This has been a fine June month on our cigar sales, said President Carlson of the Capital City Tobacco company, who checked up on the cigar business for June, this year, extending into the future. Mr. Carlson said: "We feel that we ought to be gratified with that—and we are—but, of course, we would like to have seen it doubled. So there you are."

J. N. HIRSCH.
Distributor and Jobber of C. H. S. and MANY OTHER FAMOUS BRANDS OF CIGARS, CIGARETTES AND TOBACCO.
Prompt Shipments 136 Marietta Street

Corry in Charge.
With Z. W. Corry, recently in charge of the Ansley Hotel, stand in charge of the cigar and soda stand in the four-story building on the corner of Peachtree and Peachtree streets. Mr. Corry, who will operate it in the future, has given a special invitation to all given meetings. Mr. Allen is one of the most loyal and faithful of friends and a very entertaining speaker.

Manager McLean Back.
A. E. McLean, manager of the Atlanta branch of the Liquid Carbonic company, has returned from Chicago, where he attended the managers' convention of "The Liquid." Mr. McLean reports that the convention was very profitable. Plans for next year's business were discussed in detail. Mr. McLean reports that "The Liquid" is now ready with 1916 model fountains and carbonators and will have their Atlanta showroom displaying these outfits next week.

Goes in Brokerage Game.
Friends of R. S. Morris, who has been connected with the Tennessee Central railroad for many years, will be interested to learn that he has entered in the brokerage business on his own account. The firm will be known as the Morris Brokerage company, and will handle hay, grain, flour and feed stuffs.

All Star Manufacturing Co.
Atlanta, Ga.

ADAMS AND BALDWIN RETURN FROM MEETING

Delegates to National Credit Men's Meeting Take in Big Western Fairs.

E. L. Adams and J. L. Baldwin, who left Atlanta several weeks ago as delegates from the Atlanta Credit Men's association to attend the national meeting of that body in Salt Lake City, returned to the city last week.

They report one of the largest attendance ever present at the national meeting, something more than 700 delegates being present. A number of interesting matters were discussed by the body, the Atlanta delegation taking a leading part in many of them. J. D. Moore, of Kansas City, was elected president of the national body.

Accompanying Messrs. Adams and Baldwin were Messrs. Holmes and Feltz, of Jacksonville, Fla., who returned to their home.

While in the western country, Mr. Adams and Mr. Baldwin were on the occasion to visit the big exposition at San Francisco, where they spent four days, attending the sights. Mr. Adams declares it a great exposure, and that the attendance has not been all that the people of the west have been very good and is just now improving.

The Atlantas also visited San Diego and Los Angeles and spent several days visiting the exhibitions now in progress in San Diego.

"It was a great trip," said Mr. Adams, "and we have seen some fine sights, but let me tell you, there are red hills of Georgia looked much better a few days ago. Me for Georgia."

A Handsome Booklet
One of the most attractive booklets yet sent out by an Atlanta house is that of the Hamilton Carhartt company. It is a booklet of 16 pages, and is a masterpiece of design and layout. It is a booklet that is a masterpiece of design and layout. It is a booklet that is a masterpiece of design and layout.

JONES THE LEADER IN "ARAGON" LEAGUE
There was some shuffling of positions in the Aragon league of the city. The league is a league of the city. The league is a league of the city. The league is a league of the city.

ALLEN WILL CONDUCT THE GIDEON MEETING
M. F. Allen will conduct the regular Gideon meeting on Sunday, August 2, at the Ansley Hotel, Parlor "B." Special music and singing will be given a special invitation to all given meetings.

Not Much Fishing Luck.
We had several fishing parties to go out, but the weather was not so good. The weather was not so good. The weather was not so good. The weather was not so good.

Not Much Fishing Luck.
We had several fishing parties to go out, but the weather was not so good. The weather was not so good. The weather was not so good. The weather was not so good.

Not Much Fishing Luck.
We had several fishing parties to go out, but the weather was not so good. The weather was not so good. The weather was not so good. The weather was not so good.

Not Much Fishing Luck.
We had several fishing parties to go out, but the weather was not so good. The weather was not so good. The weather was not so good. The weather was not so good.

Not Much Fishing Luck.
We had several fishing parties to go out, but the weather was not so good. The weather was not so good. The weather was not so good. The weather was not so good.

Succeed in Cafe Business

CHARLES KERAMIDAS. NICK MATRANGOS. Proprietors and managers of Peachtree Cafe.

Coming to this country fifteen years ago, and locating in Atlanta, Charles Keramidas and Nick Matrango, together with other natives of Argos, Greece, have made a success of the cafe business in this city.

At present two places, both of which are located on Peachtree street, and both most liberally patronized, are managed by the two brothers. They have a large number of waiters, and altogether good citizens of this locality.

Peachtree cafe opposite the Piedmont hotel, is under the management of Keramidas and Matrango. The cafe, at 38 Peachtree, is under the management of Matrango.

City Salesmen Return Home From Greatest Outing Ever
By J. A. Maner.

The City Salesmen and their friends returned from Charleston and the Isle of Palms Friday morning at 6:10 o'clock. This trip, as have been all other outings of the salesmen, was made without a single accident, either on the train or on the boat.

No sooner had the train started than the trouble on the train commenced. We consider this remarkable, and it speaks well for the splendid management of all connected with the handling of the train.

A Tempting Breakfast.
Almost everybody was in until we reached Atlanta, but after leaving there they retired rapidly and all about until we pulled into Charleston at 7:30. The trip was of a most interesting nature, and we carried across to the cars on the boat. The boat was a most interesting one, and we carried across to the cars on the boat.

WEBB NOW MANAGER AT PERFECTION CAFE
Perfection Cafe, the popular little eating house at 118 Peachtree street, has been put in new management, and the friends of W. F. Webb will be interested in knowing that he is now looking after the business of the cafe.

ALL STAR TRAVELERS FIRING IN ORDERS
The boys on the firing line for the All Star Manufacturing company have been trying themselves during the past few days. The boys on the firing line for the All Star Manufacturing company have been trying themselves during the past few days.

ALL STAR TRAVELERS FIRING IN ORDERS
The boys on the firing line for the All Star Manufacturing company have been trying themselves during the past few days. The boys on the firing line for the All Star Manufacturing company have been trying themselves during the past few days.

ALL STAR TRAVELERS FIRING IN ORDERS
The boys on the firing line for the All Star Manufacturing company have been trying themselves during the past few days. The boys on the firing line for the All Star Manufacturing company have been trying themselves during the past few days.

ALL STAR TRAVELERS FIRING IN ORDERS
The boys on the firing line for the All Star Manufacturing company have been trying themselves during the past few days. The boys on the firing line for the All Star Manufacturing company have been trying themselves during the past few days.

D. FLEMING WRITES ABOUT HOTEL RATES

Chairman Hotel Committee, T. P. A., Asks Hotel Men Some Questions.

Editor Constitution: Please allow me space in your valuable department to discuss a few hotel rates as the traveling man finds them today.

As chairman of the hotel committee, T. P. A. of Georgia, and Traveling Men's Social Protective association, I have had several communications addressed to me, calling attention to the general inflation that has been meted to the traveling fraternity in various hotels. I refer to the rates and overcharges, and want to take this method of replying to these communications.

Gentlemen, I am just as much opposed to this as you are, and do not think it is right, but the majority of the hotels will not let me say so. I know that it comes out of the pocket of the traveling man, and I know that it is a great deal of money. I know that it is a great deal of money.

Very Lonesome
Charles Burge, of the sales force of the McCord-Stewart company, is in the city, and is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live.

Very Lonesome
Charles Burge, of the sales force of the McCord-Stewart company, is in the city, and is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live.

Very Lonesome
Charles Burge, of the sales force of the McCord-Stewart company, is in the city, and is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live.

Very Lonesome
Charles Burge, of the sales force of the McCord-Stewart company, is in the city, and is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live.

Very Lonesome
Charles Burge, of the sales force of the McCord-Stewart company, is in the city, and is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live.

Very Lonesome
Charles Burge, of the sales force of the McCord-Stewart company, is in the city, and is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live.

Very Lonesome
Charles Burge, of the sales force of the McCord-Stewart company, is in the city, and is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live.

Very Lonesome
Charles Burge, of the sales force of the McCord-Stewart company, is in the city, and is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live.

Very Lonesome
Charles Burge, of the sales force of the McCord-Stewart company, is in the city, and is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live. He is looking for a new place to live.

SINGER CO. RECEIVES CARLOAD GINGER ALE

Was-Cott, New Ale for This Market, Seems to Have Struck Popular Chord.

The H. L. Singer company has received its first carload of Was-Cott ginger ale, and already practically all of it has been disposed of. The alemen are now taking orders on the second car, and the next shipment will come along within a short time.

This is a new ginger ale on the market, and is declared to be the most any sweet ale manufactured anywhere. The singer company is exclusive distributor, and expects to be able to supply a carload of this popular beverage every little while. It is manufactured by the Tennessee Valley Bottling Company of North Tazewell, Va., and in addition to the quality of the drink, one of the desirable features is that it is uniform in taste and uniform in appearance, and it is uniform in taste and uniform in appearance.

May Get Modification On Baggage Ruling
Editor Firing Line: There has been some adverse criticism of the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission relative to the Cummings law in regard to declaring valuation on interstate shipments. I have been asked to write you on this subject, and I believe it is a matter of some importance. I believe it is a matter of some importance.

May Get Modification On Baggage Ruling
Editor Firing Line: There has been some adverse criticism of the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission relative to the Cummings law in regard to declaring valuation on interstate shipments. I have been asked to write you on this subject, and I believe it is a matter of some importance. I believe it is a matter of some importance.

May Get Modification On Baggage Ruling
Editor Firing Line: There has been some adverse criticism of the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission relative to the Cummings law in regard to declaring valuation on interstate shipments. I have been asked to write you on this subject, and I believe it is a matter of some importance. I believe it is a matter of some importance.

May Get Modification On Baggage Ruling
Editor Firing Line: There has been some adverse criticism of the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission relative to the Cummings law in regard to declaring valuation on interstate shipments. I have been asked to write you on this subject, and I believe it is a matter of some importance. I believe it is a matter of some importance.

May Get Modification On Baggage Ruling
Editor Firing Line: There has been some adverse criticism of the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission relative to the Cummings law in regard to declaring valuation on interstate shipments. I have been asked to write you on this subject, and I believe it is a matter of some importance. I believe it is a matter of some importance.

May Get Modification On Baggage Ruling
Editor Firing Line: There has been some adverse criticism of the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission relative to the Cummings law in regard to declaring valuation on interstate shipments. I have been asked to write you on this subject, and I believe it is a matter of some importance. I believe it is a matter of some importance.

May Get Modification On Baggage Ruling
Editor Firing Line: There has been some adverse criticism of the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission relative to the Cummings law in regard to declaring valuation on interstate shipments. I have been asked to write you on this subject, and I believe it is a matter of some importance. I believe it is a matter of some importance.

May Get Modification On Baggage Ruling
Editor Firing Line: There has been some adverse criticism of the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission relative to the Cummings law in regard to declaring valuation on interstate shipments. I have been asked to write you on this subject, and I believe it is a matter of some importance. I believe it is a matter of some importance.

May Get Modification On Baggage Ruling
Editor Firing Line: There has been some adverse criticism of the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission relative to the Cummings law in regard to declaring valuation on interstate shipments. I have been asked to write you on this subject, and I believe it is a matter of some importance. I believe it is a matter of some importance.

May Get Modification On Baggage Ruling
Editor Firing Line: There has been some adverse criticism of the ruling of the Interstate Commerce commission relative to the Cummings law in regard to declaring valuation on interstate shipments. I have been asked to write you on this subject, and I believe it is a matter of some importance. I believe it is a matter of some importance.

They'll Be Here First Week in August

Merchants from every corner of the South will foregather in Atlanta to do their fall looking and buying during the first week of August.

We will be ready. Every house represented in this association will have its Very Best Foot Foremost. There will be many merchandising opportunities of compelling interest. Come!

Merchants and Manufacturers Association :: :: :: Atlanta

Plan now. Fit this into your vacation and make your little rest-time pay a profit. You'll have a good time and you can do some fine business.

Mr. GEORGIA MAN—WHAT OVERALL DO YOU BUY?

Insist on Carhartt's if you want the best by test. You will find many inferior substitutes, and remember that you will not find Carhartt's in every clothing store, profit too small for some dealers.

HAMILTON CARHARTT, Atlanta, Ga.

FIVE FLIGHTS-FILL FOR PRESIDENT'S CUP

Atlanta Athletic Club Golfers
Qualify for Play in Big Meet Saturday.

Four full flights and a half-flight in the fifth were filled at the conclusion of the qualifying round at the Atlanta Athletic club's East Lake course yesterday afternoon.

The pairings in the five flights were as follows. Handicaps apply in all flights.

First Flight.
W. H. Rogers v. C. E. Owen
C. Mott v. R. E. Scott
C. Smith v. R. E. Palmer
H. C. Moore v. R. E. Jones
P. Adams v. C. Deane
L. Arnold v. D. E. Rott
P. Adams v. C. Deane
Jos Burton v. R. E. Jones Jr.
Second Flight.
L. H. Hunslett v. F. J. Jones Jr.
C. A. Camp v. C. E. Owen
N. R. Boyles v. W. F. Rogers
A. Threlkeld v. R. E. Palmer
G. L. Lott v. F. J. Jones Jr.
P. D. Yates v. T. N. Bradshaw
H. C. Moore v. R. E. Jones
W. R. Threlkeld v. W. F. Griffith
H. R. Caid v. C. A. Hines
Third Flight.
J. S. Den v. J. O. Daring
G. L. Simpson v. W. N. Adkins
R. B. Bates v. R. E. Palmer
W. F. Stone v. R. E. Haines
R. E. Jones v. R. E. Palmer
W. G. Hensley Jr. v. T. N. Cooper
N. G. Gode Jr. v. T. N. Cooper
Fourth Flight.
W. C. Spiker v. J. O. Daring
R. E. Jones v. R. E. Palmer
J. M. Smith v. R. E. Palmer
J. M. Smith v. R. E. Palmer
J. M. Smith v. R. E. Palmer
J. M. Smith v. R. E. Palmer
J. M. Smith v. R. E. Palmer
J. M. Smith v. R. E. Palmer
Fifth Flight.
W. H. Dillard v. G. W. Walker
J. T. Moore v. W. H. Latham

Leaves for Auto Factory

Head mechanic for the Overland Southern Motor company, 225 Peachtree street, who left last week for the Willys-Overland factory at Toledo, Ohio. Mr. Thompson will spend two or three weeks in the factory of the new Willys-Knight car, which will be announced July 17. W. B. Becker, manager of the local branch, is always alive to the proposition to have his mechanics thoroughly familiar with motors of the Overland in order that the purchasers may get the very best of service.

Braves or Giants Will Not Cop in the National; Cubs Look Best to McGraw

By JOHN J. MCGRAW.

(Manager of the Giants.)

"Johnny" Evers cannot sit comfortably on the bench if he has just one good leg under him, and this impudence is liable to cost the Braves the pennant. I don't think Stallings is going to repeat. If he is, he will have to start soon, very soon. Should Evers be lucky out being held up again, Stallings has enough to hold up the season with better ball because Evers is alongside of him. I wish, he said, "I had the constitution of a truck driver, with just a little luck to go with it."

John and I had a long talk during the series between the Giants and the Braves at the Polo Grounds last week, and Evers was feeling very blue over the way things have broken for him. I wish, he said, "I had the constitution of a truck driver, with just a little luck to go with it."

There is Evers' biggest weakness—his over-ambition, a race quality in a ball player, and one which I wish some of my boys carried. The more ambition, the more a player's true value to a ball team, and the more a player's true value to a ball team, the more a player's true value to a ball team.

Confidential data obtained by the United States bureau of statistics from text-book publishers in the United States shows that the aggregate total sales of text-books for use in public and private schools in 1913 amounted to $137,274,000. The aggregate for public schools elementary and high, amounted to $124,261,700.

Confidential data obtained by the United States bureau of statistics from text-book publishers in the United States shows that the aggregate total sales of text-books for use in public and private schools in 1913 amounted to $137,274,000. The aggregate for public schools elementary and high, amounted to $124,261,700.

Confidential data obtained by the United States bureau of statistics from text-book publishers in the United States shows that the aggregate total sales of text-books for use in public and private schools in 1913 amounted to $137,274,000. The aggregate for public schools elementary and high, amounted to $124,261,700.

Confidential data obtained by the United States bureau of statistics from text-book publishers in the United States shows that the aggregate total sales of text-books for use in public and private schools in 1913 amounted to $137,274,000. The aggregate for public schools elementary and high, amounted to $124,261,700.

the youngsters of the team. John can keep a ball club on edge better than any other man in baseball. I don't think the Braves will win the championship. In view of such a bald statement, I suppose readers would like to have me say who I do think will win it. I will go further and concede I don't believe the Giants will win it. There is considerable improvement shown in some parts of the major league. I don't believe the Cubs have a fair chance to cop the pennant.

If it was not for the poor baseball this season the Giants would be out of the race now, and so would the Braves. Any first-class club would have that pennant now if it had stuck to its knitting. But the leaders of the league made the race tight, for they have made it to be a race of a good race. However, I don't believe the Federal league will be in a position to force organized baseball to sign stars up to "soft" contracts again, and I know I won't force me, no matter how strong it is. Give some club of ball players who are only mediocre performers a chance to star among them, but who know they've got to hustle for their jobs because they are subject to release, and I will bet a team of over a hundred and fifty-four games will have "soft" contracts for two or three years. It is human nature to look for when you can, and these contracts invite looting. Many of the boys don't intend to do so, but human nature makes them loat just the same.

One reason the St. Louis club is making such a good showing is because it is made up mostly of players who know that if they don't show something they won't hold their jobs in the big league, and they hate the "bushes" even worse than they hate St. Louis. Most of the regulars in the league club have been traded there by other teams. The Braves and the Cubs have been trading managers thinking he was taking a star away from the wily little St. Louis leaguers. When he came to examine what he got, he usually discovered that he had a dollar's worth of place for a five. Huggins was not forced to give them long term contracts, because they were glad enough to have jobs. So they are out there hustling every day to hold them and they are winning a lot of ball games.

I am not for holding down players who have been in the league for a long time. It is not going to be so "soft" for the boys at the end of the season and most of them know it. It will be a good thing better baseball in the series with the Braves than it will be if they are shown at any other time this season. One of the most encouraging symptoms was the game when Mathewson pitched. The two clubs which have given him the hardest battle in past seasons are the St. Louis Cardinals and the Braves, and he looked like the Man of the Year. He will break my heart when that old bird sent it to work any more. It won't seem like the Giants without him, but I believe he ought to go five years more if he is not overworked, and I am trying to look out for that personally. He deserves to take it a little easier, for he has certainly worked for the Giants.

The rest of the team is too untalented and unambitious to get anywhere. You never know what is going to break. The club may be like champions for six innings and crack wide in the seventh, with every man who can get his hands on the ball contributing his error.

To me right now the Cubs look like the heat club in the league, not because the team is leading, but because of the general showing they have made and the spirit. Zimmerman is going better than he ever did, and staying eager to the ground. He is leaving the umpires alone. I don't know what sort of a man he is, but I certainly have given him a lot of trouble. I don't know what sort of a man he is, but I certainly have given him a lot of trouble.

His another Three-Fingered Brown told me when I was in Chicago. "Then you ought to be as good a manager as Frank Chance," I replied. "And," he answered, "Bill Donovan could dig up another Charlie Mathewson or another Fred McGriff, but he can't dig up a new pitcher, and he can't dig up a new pitcher, and he can't dig up a new pitcher."

The Constitution's Amateur Baseball Page

Conducted by Carl Taylor

Junior Sunday School League.

LEAGUE STANDING.

CLUBS.	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
CLUBS.	1	0	1.000
Second Street.	1	0	1.000
St. Luke.	1	0	1.000

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

THE BOX SCORE.

CLUBS.	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
CLUBS.	1	0	1.000
Second Street.	1	0	1.000
St. Luke.	1	0	1.000

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

JUNIOR AVE.

Junior Ave. was defeated by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ST. LUKE'S LEAGUE.

The St. Luke's team was defeated Saturday afternoon by the Braves in a game which was crammed full of features. The Braves won by a score of 10 to 4. The last double play.

ON THE FRINGE

W. P. FAIR JOINS INSURANCE FORCES

Firing Line readers will be interested in the announcement made a few days ago, that W. P. Fair, who has long been actively connected with the firm of Fair & Stamps, has been appointed state agent for the states of Georgia and Florida of the Reserve Loan Life Insurance company, succeeding John T. Tucker, who died some time since.

Fair, who has been interested with the insurance company will devote practically all of his time to the insurance game, leaving Mr. Stamps the active management of the big wholesale grocery house, though still retaining his interest in the latter firm.

M. Alexia, representing M. Stachelberg, is expected in the city the coming week on his usual, some good work in the Stachelberg class.

IT'S A PERFECT DELIGHT TO LIGHT

C.H.S.
The Havana Cigar
Without Competition.

A FREE TRIP

to Atlanta is available to the merchant who buys an adequate bill from the members of the Merchants' Association.

Write to
H. T. MOORE
Secretary
Chamber of Commerce Bldg.
ATLANTA

ATLANTA COFFEE MILLS COMPANY
Only House in Atlanta Handling Coffee Exclusively.
EUREKA
Every Department in Charge of Experts.
All Grades of Coffee Obtainable.
FRESH ROASTED DAILY.
Wholesale Only.

NEW CROP FLOUR
Of Famous J. Allen Smith & Co. Brands
E. L. ADAMS CO., ATLANTA, GEORGIA
DISTRIBUTORS

THE S. P. RICHARDS CO.
Printers' Papers
School Supplies and Druggists' Sundries
WHOLESALE ONLY ATLANTA, GA.
Established 1848

Good All the Year and For All Purposes

ALL WHOLESALE GROCERS

Qualite Par Excellence

FRUIT JARS
Car Load Expected to Arrive Tuesday
Your Orders Solicited

Fain & Stamps

How "Opening Bill" Got His Nickname

When he was a tiny little fellow—just at the age when he could stick his chubby toes in his mouth, thus "making both ends meet"—Edward Pinkney Lewis was the name etched in his parents' hearts. As he grew the boys called him Ed.

When he reached man's estate he signed himself E. P. Lewis. But for the past nearly ten years this same bustling, determined man has been "making both ends meet" financially speaking, by the persistent and aggressive manner in which he has made his presence felt with the McClure Twenty-cent company, and has won the title of "Opening Bill," by which he is known to stocks and scores of his friends. As sales manager for the McClure company Mr. Lewis has perhaps sold more opening bills than any other salesman in the United States. The "Opening Bill" was given to him for this reason a few years ago by the then editor of this Firing Line, and it has stuck with clinging popularity.

One of the ways of this year Mr. Lewis has made a brave effort to live up to his name, and very few weeks have passed without an opening at some point to report.

Gives Up His Team

After twenty-eight years spent on the firing line, but of which he traveled by rail and the other half by team, J. Jefferson, known to thousands of customers and friends as "Uncle Jeff," will start out Monday for Dougherty-Little-Redwine in a brand-new, spanking new Saturday making preparations for his new mode of travel, and almost with a tear in his eye, he refused that modern methods had forced him to surrender Jack and Black, his two favorite mules, who have hauled him over thousands of miles of country roads.

In keeping with his new and up-to-date mode of travel, "Uncle Jeff" has dived himself out in the latest cut of Palm Beach, and was facing up and down the floor trying to see if he could adjust himself to a comfortable and easy feeling without suspenders. But when he reached the "heel-haul" at the rim of his new Palm Beach pants and the boys in the house hardly believe he will be able to safely go out without something substantial to hold them up.

Peachtree Cafe
Opposite the Piedmont Hotel
111 Peachtree Street
We invite the travelers to get their meals in our Cafe. We guarantee them first-class white service in a delightfully cool place and—

THE BEST OF EVERYTHING

ATLANTA COFFEE MILLS COMPANY
Only House in Atlanta Handling Coffee Exclusively.
EUREKA
Every Department in Charge of Experts.
All Grades of Coffee Obtainable.
FRESH ROASTED DAILY.
Wholesale Only.

NEW CROP FLOUR
Of Famous J. Allen Smith & Co. Brands
E. L. ADAMS CO., ATLANTA, GEORGIA
DISTRIBUTORS

THE S. P. RICHARDS CO.
Printers' Papers
School Supplies and Druggists' Sundries
WHOLESALE ONLY ATLANTA, GA.
Established 1848

Good All the Year and For All Purposes

ALL WHOLESALE GROCERS

Qualite Par Excellence

FRUIT JARS
Car Load Expected to Arrive Tuesday
Your Orders Solicited

Fain & Stamps

COUNCIL 18, U. C. T., ENTERTAINS FRIENDS

Council 18, United Commercial Travelers, entertained a number of invited guests on Saturday evening, June 24, at its hall in the Baker building. After the regular routine of a business session had been gone through with, the invited friends and the families of the members were present for the evening. An excellent program of music and recitations was enjoyed. After the program an informal hour was spent, in which delicious refreshments were served. The council is expecting to give one of these open house meetings every month, and when it does, if you get an invitation, you come, or you'll miss something mighty good.

Big Haul—Or What?

Whether or not news is good news or bad news is rather puzzling to the U. C. T. member company force these days. Two of its crack salesmen—J. E. Brown and T. J. Camp—along with several other Atlanta salesmen, have been spending their vacations in a tented city on Swatara street. It is presumed they are all having a most successful time, but the fact that the company has heard nothing from the two boys, make the situation rather peculiar. They have either made a big haul, or they will be stuck in the tent, or they haven't made any haul at all—when the time is the most likely of the two.

Busy Vacation Week.

H. T. Mell, of the publicity department of the John Deere Plow company, had a vacation recently but he didn't vacate much. True, he didn't stay about the big office on Nelson street, but he was about the busiest man in town for a good part of his rest week. Little Anita Bell, his first born, who is only about three years old, has been the age to begin to be very interesting to him, and they say she is foolish about her father. So that's why Harriett, his second, is the most likely of the two.

Back With His Trade.
H. A. McDonald, the old "war horse" of the sales force of the McCord-Steele company, who has been traveling in the United States, has returned to his old home in the city. He has been traveling in the United States, and has been very successful in his trade. He has been traveling in the United States, and has been very successful in his trade.

Lewis Is Hustling.
T. R. Lewis, one of the chiefest among the chief firing liners for the Capital City Tobacco company, is expected to make up for lost time during the next week. He has been traveling in the United States, and has been very successful in his trade. He has been traveling in the United States, and has been very successful in his trade.

Lesene "Resting Well."
That being just one of a party of some two hundred little, feisty, good-natured, rollicking city salesmen, a mighty good job for a big fat man who needed a rest and relaxation. He has been traveling in the United States, and has been very successful in his trade. He has been traveling in the United States, and has been very successful in his trade.

They Want to Know.
The boys are wondering where V. M. Maxwell, one of the chief firing liners for John Silver & Co., manages to get so much rest and relaxation. He has been traveling in the United States, and has been very successful in his trade. He has been traveling in the United States, and has been very successful in his trade.

Thanks for the Messages.
The fact that all the city men for Fain & Stamps were in the city last week, most of them in the city, and that the company never suffered one word of complaint, is a very good thing. The company has been very successful in its trade. The company has been very successful in its trade.

Run on School Supplies.
We are having our usual good run on school supplies. The school year is almost over, and the school supplies are almost gone. The school supplies are almost gone. The school supplies are almost gone.

No Evidence Found Against Ed Cheney
By Coroner's Jury

FIRING LINE NOTES

NEW ROAD OPENED UP BY BOSTON TRADE BOARD

BIBLE CLASS HOLDS OFFICERS' ELECTION

BRITISH ASSOCIATION TO GIVE DANCE FRIDAY

ATLANTA BIBLE ASSOCIATION

Granny Morris, of Adel, Gathers Four Generations Under Her Wing

Members of five generations, the oldest of whom is only 76 years of age. From left to right: Mrs. M. T. Griffin, Master Randall Lovett Griffin, Mrs. G. N. Quinn, Grandmammy Eliza Morris and Mrs. J. D. Connel.

Adel, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—Mrs. Eliza Morris, lovingly known in this section as Grandmammy Morris, is proud of the fact that at the age of 75 years she was recently able to gather around her four generations of descendants, and with them, pose for a picture representing five generations.

Grandmammy Morris was formerly Miss Hancock, daughter of John Daniel Hancock, and belongs to one of the oldest families in Berrien county. When 12 years old she married J. D. Griffin. They had four sons and five daughters, many of whom are still living, and are influential citizens of Berrien county.

When 15 years old, her oldest daughter, Fannie, married P. B. Connel, and is now living in the city. Her second daughter, Mary, married J. D. Connel, and is now living in the city. Her third daughter, Eliza, married G. N. Quinn, and is now living in the city. Her fourth daughter, Eliza, married J. D. Connel, and is now living in the city.

NEW EMORY ACADEMY IS PROVING POPULAR
Only About Hundred More Applications for Admission Can Be Considered.

Oxford, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—The popularity of the new Emory Academy is evidenced by the number of applications for admission received by the academy. The academy is now open for admission, and the number of applications received is about 100 more than the academy can accommodate.

WILL CELEBRATE OPENING MONDAY OF MADDOX PARK

To celebrate the opening of Maddox park, members of the Fifth Ward Improvement club will hold an open air meeting at the park Monday at noon. The club has been very successful in its work, and the park is now open for the public.

THREE BUILDINGS LOST IN FIRE AT CARROLLTON

Carrollton, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—At an early hour this morning the three buildings of the Carrollton Hotel, owned by Professor J. H. Melson, president of the A. M. school here, and the Dixie boarding house, adjoining the hotel, and also the residence occupied by Mr. Melson, were destroyed by fire. The fire started in the rear of the Dixie house, and could not be checked. The buildings were partially insured. The loss is estimated at $12,000.

His Qualifications.
(From The Columbus (Ohio) Journal.)
There is still much to be said for the editor who is not only a good writer, but also a good man. The editor who is not only a good writer, but also a good man, is the one who is most likely to succeed.

FOURTH OF JULY
Special rates via W. & A. R. R. tickets on July 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 1915. Apply ticket agent.

WAR BOOKS UPON
The Atlanta Constitution
Only One Coupon and 98c

NATIONS AT WAR
By WILLIS J. ABBOT

Read How You May Have It Almost Free
Cut out the above coupon, and present it at this office with the expense amount of 98c (which covers the items of cost of packing, express, and handling charges). The book is yours. No return necessary. (Extra items), and receive this splendid book.

AD MEN'S CLUB TO BACK FAKE ADVERTISING BILL

Thought Measure Will Have No Opposition—Executive Committee to Meet.

Strong support is promised the bill in behalf of truth in advertising, backed by the Ad Men's club of Atlanta and just introduced in the house of representatives by Representative Walter F. Andrews of Fulton.

Both Mr. Andrews and President St. Elmo Massengale, of the Ad Men's club, have made inquiries regarding the measure, and state that they have been unable to find any shred of opposition to it of any sort.

"We have every reason to believe from the interest in the measure," says Massengale, "that the measure will meet with favorable reception in both houses. It is simply designed to protect the advertiser from the legitimate home-burner against outright fraud, and a matter of common sense, which naturally appeals to every good lawmaker. We feel confident it will have unusually strong support."

A meeting of the executive committee of the Ad Men's club was called in the office of President St. Elmo Massengale for Monday at 12 o'clock noon, to go over the "Chicago" bill, and to arrange an early meeting at which a report will be made by the Atlanta delegation.

It is expected at this meeting to appoint a committee to before the proper committees of the legislature, and to urge prompt and favorable action upon the bill against fraudulent advertisements.

DR. CLARK COMPLETES HIS MEDICAL COURSE

Dr. E. J. Clark has completed a medical course in Birmingham, Ala., and is now practicing in the Forsyth building.

Reward for Assailant.

Valdosta, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—Citizens of Chattahoochee, in order to have offered a reward of $50 for the arrest and detention of Nelson Moore, a negro, who assaulted a prominent citizen on the 25th inst. The reward is offered for the arrest and detention of Nelson Moore, a negro, who assaulted a prominent citizen on the 25th inst.

Blood Risings Begin A Mere Speck

Stop Them From Growing Large and Dangerous.

KODAK
Send film for Free Development. Lowest prices. Kodak film for Free Development. Lowest prices. Kodak film for Free Development. Lowest prices.

Georgia Cleaner
Remove instantly every particle of dirt, grease or grime from any painted or unpainted surface.

Georgia Paint & Glass Co.
32-37 Lockie Street.

WAR BOOKS UPON
The Atlanta Constitution
Only One Coupon and 98c

NATIONS AT WAR
By WILLIS J. ABBOT

Read How You May Have It Almost Free
Cut out the above coupon, and present it at this office with the expense amount of 98c (which covers the items of cost of packing, express, and handling charges). The book is yours. No return necessary. (Extra items), and receive this splendid book.

WAR BOOKS UPON
The Atlanta Constitution
Only One Coupon and 98c

NATIONS AT WAR
By WILLIS J. ABBOT

Married Here Saturday, Will Spend Honeymoon At Shrine Convention

It. G. Cook, of Knoxville, Tenn., and Miss Elizabeth Brown, of Pulaski, Tenn., were married in Atlanta yesterday. They left yesterday afternoon upon their honeymoon, which will include a visit to the Shrine convention in Seattle.

Mr. Cook is an officer of the Alhambra patrol, of Knoxville. He and his bride will join the Southern Shriners in St. Paul and go from there with them to Seattle. Mr. Cook is also a delegate to the options' convention which will meet in San Francisco this month.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook stopped at the Piedmont hotel while in Atlanta.

PATENTS

Send for our Free Book on Patents and Trademarks. We will tell you how to secure a patent and how to protect your rights. Write to: MUNN & CO., Patent Attorneys, 635 F Street, Washington, D. C.

North Georgia Natural Mineral Spring Water. For prices and other information, write MINERAL WATER SUPPLY CO., BLUE RIDGE, GA.

Look Whos Here

JACOBS PHARMACY

CAMERA DEPT. AT OUR MAIN STORE

Agents for the Kodak Camera. We have opened the new department at our Main Store with a complete stock of Kodak Cameras and photographic supplies. Developing, printing and enlarging of films and plates.

PIRE Developing of Roll Films. Film Packs and Plates.

A practical photographer is in charge of the department. He will be glad to assist you with your photographic difficulties. He will explain WHY if you have a poor negative and tell you how to make a good one. He has been through all problems that confront a amateur.

No charge for this service.

OFFICIAL EISEMANN MAGNETO SERVICE STATION

Experienced Factory Man
Completes Cost of Parts
Pegram Motor Car Co.
255-257 Peachtree Street

TRUE VALUES

ASSOCIATION

YES

Every good legitimate retail merchant or commercial house in Atlanta, whose methods meet the requirements of the high standard adopted by this Association for the protection of the buying public, is eligible to membership in the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association.

Are you dealing with an X-Ray House? If not—ask them why they are not members.

You will find it to your interest to be guided by Atlanta's Business X-Ray!

Atlanta Retail Merchants Association

A GUARANTEE OF TRUTH
LOOK FOR IT IN THE ADS IN THIS PAPER

Low Round Trip Fares NORTH AND WEST

ROUND TRIP tickets over the Louisville & Nashville Railroad are sold daily at greatly reduced fares to all the principal lake, mountain, and shore resorts and to many of the larger cities in the North and West.

These tickets are good returning until October 31st, and bear liberal stop-over privileges.

Attention is called to the superior train service of this line with through drawing room and observation sleepers equipped with individual electric berth lights and electric fans, and modern coaches to Cincinnati and Louisville, connecting in Union Stations with trains of other lines beyond. Unsurpassed dining car service. Meals a la carte.

Trains leave Atlanta daily 7.12 a. m. and 4.45 p. m.
LET US ARRANGE YOUR VACATION TRIP

For further particulars, rates, literature, sleeping car reservations, etc., call upon L & N CITY TICKET OFFICE
14 Peachtree Street ATLANTA, GA.

WAYCROSS MAYOR PUTS BAN ON SCARLET WOMEN

Orders Police Chief to Close
All Questionable Houses and Banish Inmates.

Waycross, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—Women of questionable character and houses frequented by them will not be tolerated in Waycross hereafter in consequence of action taken today. Mayor Beaton sent a communication this afternoon to Chief John W. Colley, of the police department, requesting that the police department institute immediately a searching investigation regarding the existence of questionable women in Waycross.

"I want you to make an extraordinary effort to locate every woman of questionable character, whether she be in a house in the city or in a hotel, and notify her that she must leave the city limits within ten days. If you find any houses of a questionable nature in the city I would thank you to see that they are broken up at once."

Mayor Beaton's communication created quite a stir in Waycross. When he was elected mayor after one of the strictest campaigns Waycross has ever known, his opponents charged that he was going to make Waycross a "wide-open" city.

HARDWICK SPEAKS ON "AMERICANISM" AT SUMMER SCHOOL

Athens, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—On the principle of "representative government," nearly all of Georgia celebrated the Glorious Fourth on the campus of the university today about noon, more than 125 of the counties of the state being represented by one or more delegates. The delegates, who were guests at the state summer school in the audience, which overflowed the historic chapel.

From Peabody hall to the campus the Georgia flag floated side by side with the United States flag and the Georgia flag floated side by side. The professional, a motion picture of which was made, made a remarkable scene. In the chapel, after prayer by Rev. Dr. C. C. Jarrell, Judge Hamilton McWhorter introduced the speaker, who talked on "Americanism." He recounted the fact that while in the United States the south and the Georgia responded to the call of the United States more generally and promptly than other sections, in proportion to population, that the south can be made to stand on tiptoe more easily to population, that the south and the lines of gray than at the all-time low of the nation. He said that in other times he had found all other nations practically wiped out and hatred of the south forgotten. His address was a call to positive, aggressive Americanism in Dixie.

These Children Want Homes; Will You Hear Their Appeal?

From left to right: Standing, Florence Bragg, 8 years; John Barrow, 8 years; Christiana Bragg, 5 years; Fannie Yawn, 9 years. Seated, Archie Bate, 2 years; Eugene ("Buster") Howard, aged 2 years.

Posing before the camera man, waiting for the little bird to fly out of the camera's eye, the kiddies pictured above felt as proud and happy as though they had been the poor little guests at Reginald Astorfer's birthday party.

These are some of the boys and girls without mothers, or with mothers who have been abandoned by their fathers, and the Georgia Children's Home society from parents of immorality or of despair, and are waiting now for someone, somewhere, to become interested in their uncertain careers. Every one of these sons and daughters is looking for a home.

"Mother" McManus in Charge.

Out on Dodd avenue, "Mother" McManus, with whom these little ones are boarding temporarily, is acting mother to them all. She bathes, nurses, tucks in bed and feeds them. Most of them like her better than they do their real mothers, and it may be, perhaps, as they get the kids away from their former "homes." But they can't stay here forever. The one eating and sleeping and growing, and before long they will be too big for Mother McManus, and from that time on they will be on their own. The Georgia Children's Home society is trying to find homes for the babies.

A larger number of parents in Georgia are yielding to the corrupting influence about them and becoming totally unfit to rear their children," says Superintendent Robert B. McCord.

JOHN T. DORSEY GIVEN SPLENDID APPOINTMENT

Cobb Representative Is Chairman of Important Penitentiary Committee.

One of the highest compliments paid by Speaker Burwell, of the house of representatives, in the assignment of his committees was conveyed by the appointment of Hon. John T. Dorsey.

Of Cobb county, as chairman of the penitentiary committee of the house, which is composed of native born sons of Cobb county, Mr. Dorsey will preside in one of the most important committees of the general assembly, and from time immemorial the chairmanship has been filled by selection from the big timber of the legislative body.

The new chairman is a lawyer by profession, and removed to Marietta from Hall county in 1908. Marietta being the home of his wife, who is the granddaughter of General James V. Robertson.

Mr. Dorsey is skilled in his profession, and no amateur in politics, being one of the leading and most influential, civic and commercial development of his home county.

His friends have showered Mr. Dorsey with congratulations upon his appointment to the chairmanship of this important committee whose membership has also expressed their gratification upon the assignment.

SCOTTISH ASSOCIATION ENJOYS PICNIC MONDAY

The Atlanta Scottish Association, which is composed of native born sons or sons of the name, have made elaborate plans for a picnic, to be held on the Fourth of July picnic, which will be held at the Soldiers' home camp.

The association plans to make it more of a picnic than it has ever been in the past. There will be no sports, Scottish games and contests, to the winners of which prizes will be awarded.

SAYS HER FATHER TRIED TO DEFAUD CREDITOR

Macon, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—In the superior court today, in an action for a receivership for a stock of drugs at Fort Valley, Mrs. P. Patton charged that her father, now deceased, turned the stock over to her brother, P. G. Hobbs, to defeat a creditor, with the understanding that should the original owners find the purpose was accomplished, arguments would be resumed Monday.

HIGHWAY CELEBRATION AT AMERICUS TOMORROW

8,000 Visitors Are Expected.
Parade and Street-Ball to Be Features.

Americus, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—Americus is ready for the big Dixie highway celebration that will occur here Monday. It is estimated that 8,000 people will visit the city for the event. The streets of the city and the business houses have been decorated. The program includes a floral parade, public speaking, maneuvers by the Second Georgia regiment, two bull games between Montezuma and Dawson and an electric street ball. Music for the occasion will be furnished by three brass bands.

CHURCHES IN DECATUR PLAN UNION SERVICES

Decatur, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—The churches of Decatur have adopted a plan for union services during the summer months. Union services are to be held at the First Presbyterian church during the week ending July 25th. The services will go from church to church. The first of these services will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, and Dr. G. Patton, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will preach.

SHIPMENTS OF MELONS VERY HEAVY THIS WEEK

Valdosta, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—Cantaloupes and watermelons, shipments from the Valdosta territory, which have been very heavy for a week, are expected to reach the maximum by next Monday or Tuesday. Immense yields are reported by the growers in this section, but they have been disappointed in the prices for their produce. The market is still weak, but many of the best informed growers look for some improvement next week. A few of the first cars to eastern markets brought $2 per crate, netting the grower between $50 and $60 per car. This is considered a fair return, and with good yields growers can make the figures above, while in the case of smaller express shipments a few growers have realized even better returns. The cantaloupes men are facing much better than the watermelon growers, numbers of whom have sold their melons in the fields or on cars here before

GRADY COOK RELEASED FROM JAIL UNDER BOND

Macon, Ga., June 3.—(Special).—Grady Cook, a young man from Butts county, indicted by the grand jury at the recent session of the United States district court on a charge of swindling a Chicago mail order house, was released from the Butts county jail today under bond. He will be tried at the next term of court.

GREENE COUNTY FAILS TO PASS BRIDGE BONDS

Greensboro, Ga., July 3.—(Special).—A proposed bond issue for the construction of bridges in Greene county failed to carry today on account of the light vote cast.

FOURTH OF JULY

Special rates via W. & A. R. R. Atlanta en route July 4 and 5. Return limit July 5. Apply ticket agents. General Passenger Agent.

$1.00 WARM SPRINGS AND return July 5th. Southern Railway.

NATURAL BOWDEN LITHIA SPRING WATER

Lithia Springs, Ga.

1888—A Wonderful Record—1915

BOWDEN LITHIA SPRING WATER was introduced to the Atlanta public 27 years ago, and its fame has grown with each succeeding year, until now it is the most universally popular water upon this or any other market.

Purity is the one quality that has challenged and won the admiration of mankind since the beginning of time, and it is this quality that has given to BOWDEN a reputation never before attained by any other NATURAL LITHIA SPRING WATER.

And, the test of time is the proof of quality—BOWDEN LITHIA was the first water ever sold in Atlanta for table use and general drinking purposes, and for nearly three decades has been the standard of excellence in hundreds of the most particular homes, and the favorite among many thousands in the offices, banks and commercial enterprises. It triumphantly survives more than 50 waters launched in Atlanta since it was placed upon the market almost 30 years ago; a praiseworthy record—a deserved acknowledgment of its splendid quality and superior merit.

It was the "daddy" of that most delightful of all fountain beverages, "Lemon-Lime and Lithia"—a drink that has become famous for its rich taste and goodness—a drink that refreshes 10,000 palates in Atlanta almost every day.

BOWDEN LITHIA SPRING WATER is bottled only at the great springs, in glass that has been sterilized by the most approved process, is then sealed over a new, sterilized cork, and reaches you in all of its original purity, and about as fresh as if gathered from a spring in your own yard. There is never a disappointment in Bowden Lithia—there are families in Atlanta who began it a quarter of a century ago, who still drink it every day. It is the one NATURAL production that should be in every home and every counting room everywhere.

Let Us Impress This Upon You

DISTILLED CHATTAHOOCHEE, and ARTIFICIAL, CHEMICALLY MADE LITHIA, is neither an imitation nor a substitute for the genuine NATURAL PRODUCT, and all such deceptive nostrums should be spurned.

The natural—the original—the old reliable, Lemon-Lime and BOWDEN LITHIA may be had at all fountains, and should be called for by its full name to avoid any possible disappointment.

ATLANTA MINERAL WATERS CO.

Atlanta Distributors for BOWDEN LITHIA SPRING WATER
Bell Ivy 130—Atlanta 130

If You Are Interested in a Trip to the Great Expositions

WE WRITE YOU

To write us for our California Tour Booklets and descriptive literature of the Western Country, describing in details these Great Tours.

Our third big train will pass through Atlanta next Wednesday morning, July 7th. Our Tours Nos. 1 and 2, which left the Carolinas June 8th and June 24th, respectively, are now touring the West.

The third of these Great Trips leaves July 6th; the fourth July 12th; the fifth July 24th; the sixth August 2nd.

The Route The Train

The Tours consume from 30 to 40 days, visiting all of the great attractions through the West, including the Grand Canyon of Arizona, the Yellowstone National Park, the American Rockies in Colorado, Colorado Springs, Pike's Peak, the Royal Gorge, Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, the Two Great Expositions at San Diego and San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Vancouver, the Canadian Rockies, St. Paul and Chicago.

All of the parties will travel in trains of the very finest Pullman equipment, offering every facility for comfort and pleasure. The very best dining car service will be provided, and only the best hotels are used.

Each and every party is personally conducted by experienced men and satisfactorily chaperoned.

Make your arrangements to take one of the magnificent trips. Write us at once for booklet.

GATTIS TOURIST AGENCY

Tourist Agents Seaboard Air Line Railway :: Raleigh, North Carolina

JULY

To celebrate our Nation's Day,
July thru all the land has spread
The red and white of blossom gay,
And blue of summer skies overhead

LOUISE HUNTER.

BROKE

QUERRELS (From the Scenario by GRACE CUNARD)

AUTHOR of "THE LADY and the PIRATE," "JOHN RAWN," ETC.

COPYRIGHT, 1915 BY WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

FIRST INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER I.

The Cryptic Coin.

Kitty Gray, crack reporter on the Evening Star, pulled out of her typewriter the last sheet of paper and piled it on the little heap of finished copy which lay at her elbow. Then she closed her desk, stepped to the wardrobe, and took out her coat and hat.

Taking her little collection of copy paper from the desk, with the privilege of long tenure in office she walked to the desk of the city editor, who, although himself a married man, had all this time without success tried to look at the work before him and not at the trim figure of Kitty Gray making ready for her luncheon journey.

"When will you design to return?" asked he, with a certain lapse in journalistic dignity.

"When I have a better story than this guff—in the vernacular."

Kitty's favorite luncheon place was in one of the great department stores, where women were made welcome and comfortable, and she bent thither her steps, but midway in her journey she paused, as often she did, to gaze into the window of the little antique shop which occupied space in one of the unimportant side streets.

Kitty Gray's eyes were arrested by something that she saw—an object which she did not recall ever before to have noted in the window. It lay close to the glass, just tilted back so that it might be the better seen. It apparently was an old coin or part of one, curiously done in some dark metal, probably silver badly oxidized.

As Kitty bent down to examine it more closely, she saw that the coin bore an inscription, or what appeared to be such—an inscription broken across by the fracture which had divided the coin itself.

Her curiosity excited, Kitty Gray stepped into the little shop, whose proprietor she knew very well.

"Good morning, Mr. Mainz," she said with the customary newspaper inversion of the order of the day, "how's business? Any new fans, idols, coins?"

"Coins? Vot! Sure, I got something new dot is oit. I choost kin of him. He is only a part of himself. Should I show him to you?"

"Oh, maybe I saw it in the window," said Kitty smiling. "You mean he has been coin?"

"Sure. Vait till I got him."

Kitty took up the coin now from the case, and some strange sort of thrill came over her as she did so, she could not tell why. What was the message, halting, broken, incomplete? Did it hold a story? What was the story?

"It's odd, isn't it?" said she, and laid it down again carelessly—without, carelessness well feigned; for Kitty Gray had bought antiques before now, and knew well enough when to suppress interest.

"Odd? I should say it was odd," rejoined the old dealer. Kitty had picked up an inland mother of pearl fan and was studiously examining that now.

"How much?" asked she, holding up the fan.

"For the broken coin?"

"No, the fan."

"I want twelf tollar for him."

"For the coin?"

"No, for the fan. For the coin—vat you give me?"

Kitty Gray's heart gave a sudden little jump. She would have given twice eleven dollars for the coin itself, but she made a good pretense.

"Eleven dollars is a good deal of money," said she. "I would have to go without lunch for quite a while."

"You are a good sport, Miss Gray," said the old dealer. "I thank you very much. I should wrap them up."

"The fan—yes. Let me see the coin again." She pushed across the counter almost the last of the tightly folded bills in her purse.

Read the inscription for me, and I'll knock off two tollars from the fan," said Mainz. "Vot is it? It is not Cherman, it is not Franzoesch, it is not English. I am all those. But I could not read him."

Kitty held before her the curious object, a slight form pucker in her brow.

"Well, you see," said she. "It is broken right across on the right hand side—almost a third of the writing is gone."

"Did vot next?"

"It says something about looking for something under the foot, under the pavement of some place of torture or torment."

"The next line is one word; it's all there—'Regis.' He went on. 'That's plain. 'Regis'—it means 'king' or 'of the king.' 'The king's treasure'—what? I'm down to the last words now. It is curious—a proper name, it is only the Latin name of the kingdom of Gretshoffen! That's a little bankrupt kingdom once in southern Europe, near the Mediterranean. I know about it—I'd a story about it once, the time the kingdom was trying to float a loan in this country. I had to read up a whole lot."

"I bet you could do it, Miss Gray," said Mainz, admiringly. Well, goody. Come again and tell me vot you find out, like a good girl."

"Sure," said Kitty, and turned to leave, her coin clutched tightly in her hand. So intent was she on her purchase that she did not notice she had dropped the package containing the shabby fan. Vaguely missing something as she emerged into the open air, she turned back, and almost ran into a man who had passed her as she came out.

It was a foreign-looking individual, dark of hair and eyes and skin, strongly built, a figure such as one would note. He bowed low courteously enough as he handed her the package she had let fall.

She thanked him and hurried on her way. This stranger entered the shop and spoke in some foreign tongue to the old dealer, who shook his head.

"No," said he, answering in English. "I choost sold it to dot young lady who went out."

"Who is she?" demanded the foreigner in the same tongue he had first employed.

"Who is she? I know her very well. She is on der paper. Better you look out or she put you in der paper sure. Miss Kitty Gray vos an oldt friend of mine. She read like a book vot vos on der coin. Vy didn't you telephone—maybe she sell it back to you—I don't know. She wouldn't sell it back to me, I know dot. Vot! you are going?"

CHAPTER II.

The Big Assignment.

Kitty Gray did not go to her usual place for luncheon that day. Instead she hurried into a nearby delicatessen shop and bought a sandwich, which she put in her handbag. After this she hurried on back to the office. Arrived there, without ceremony she went again to the desk of the city editor, and silently laid down before him her empty purse, her antique fan, her sandwich and her broken coin.

Cutter looked up with professional calm.

"Yes, Miss Gray? Why all this orderly array of fresh and interesting objects?"

"That is my story," said she.

"What makes you think so? Are you seeing things, Miss Gray?"

"Look here."

Kitty picked up the coin and showed it to him.

"See, it is broken quite across—more than a third of it gone. The inscription is Latin. It is not so much what is on the coin—it is what is off of it. Perhaps it commemorates something."

"Commemorates what, Miss Gray?"

"Precisely—what? That's the story!"

"By Jove!" Cutter was studying at the inscription—whatever it was—under the microscope.

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"Underneath the flagstone or 'pavement' or 'floor'—in the angle or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—there will be found treasures—of the king—"

"Of Gretshoffen!" concluded Kitty Gray.

"You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutter? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out."

"Subj means 'under'—what does it say—'under the bamboo tree'?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"Underneath the flagstone or 'pavement' or 'floor'—in the angle or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—there will be found treasures—of the king—"

"Of Gretshoffen!" concluded Kitty Gray.

"You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutter? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out."

"Subj means 'under'—what does it say—'under the bamboo tree'?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"Underneath the flagstone or 'pavement' or 'floor'—in the angle or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—there will be found treasures—of the king—"

"Of Gretshoffen!" concluded Kitty Gray.

"You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutter? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out."

"Subj means 'under'—what does it say—'under the bamboo tree'?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"Underneath the flagstone or 'pavement' or 'floor'—in the angle or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—there will be found treasures—of the king—"

"Of Gretshoffen!" concluded Kitty Gray.

"You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutter? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out."

"Subj means 'under'—what does it say—'under the bamboo tree'?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"Underneath the flagstone or 'pavement' or 'floor'—in the angle or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—there will be found treasures—of the king—"

"Of Gretshoffen!" concluded Kitty Gray.

"You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutter? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out."

"Subj means 'under'—what does it say—'under the bamboo tree'?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"Underneath the flagstone or 'pavement' or 'floor'—in the angle or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—there will be found treasures—of the king—"

"Of Gretshoffen!" concluded Kitty Gray.

"You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutter? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out."

"Subj means 'under'—what does it say—'under the bamboo tree'?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"Underneath the flagstone or 'pavement' or 'floor'—in the angle or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—there will be found treasures—of the king—"

"Of Gretshoffen!" concluded Kitty Gray.

"You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutter? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out."

"Subj means 'under'—what does it say—'under the bamboo tree'?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"Underneath the flagstone or 'pavement' or 'floor'—in the angle or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—there will be found treasures—of the king—"

"Of Gretshoffen!" concluded Kitty Gray.

"You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutter? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out."

"Subj means 'under'—what does it say—'under the bamboo tree'?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"Underneath the flagstone or 'pavement' or 'floor'—in the angle or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—there will be found treasures—of the king—"

"Of Gretshoffen!" concluded Kitty Gray.

"You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutter? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out."

"Subj means 'under'—what does it say—'under the bamboo tree'?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

"Underneath the flagstone or 'pavement' or 'floor'—in the angle or 'corner'—whatever that may be—'chamber of torture'—'room of torments'—whatever it is—there will be found treasures—of the king—"

"Of Gretshoffen!" concluded Kitty Gray.

"You have not forgotten all your Latin, have you, Mr. Cutter? There is a story for you—if we can only dig it out."

"Subj means 'under'—what does it say—'under the bamboo tree'?"

"No, 'under the sidewalk' or the 'flagstone,' or 'floor.'"

the same man who had handed her the package when she dropped it in the little antique shop? Why should he be on board this boat? Why should he recognize her, remember her—for he had! Trust a woman to know that—he had—he did. Yes, he had known her. Again a cold feeling of apprehension clutched at Kitty Gray's stout little heart.

She rose and tried to fling off her depression by means of a visit to the dining saloon. But for some reason she felt she would be more comfortable—or more safe—in her own room. Here she lay down upon the single berth, which was directly beneath the porthole.

She woke—she knew not when nor why—woke with her eyes starting, passing in the instant from sleep to waking.

A face was looking in upon her! A man had been looking at her, or trying to look at her, as she lay asleep.

Kitty Gray's instinct spoke to her some message—she could not tell what. Swiftly she caught the chamois bag from her bosom, and, emptying its main treasures into her hand, placed them in that she asked suddenly. "You said you had written about it. I suppose—"

"Well, you see," replied Kitty, "when the big news story about the proposed Gretshoffen loan—its hawkings about the street and its rejection—when that came out I was put on the assignment of looking into Gretshoffen in general. I remember that the old king's name was Michael, wasn't it?"

"The one that died? Yes, Michael the First. He was a good sort. His death was the unluckiest thing that ever happened for this poor little people. He was a good man, King Michael, and a strong one, and a just. So much cannot be said, I am thinking, of the new incumbent of the throne, Michael the Second."

"You see, this Michael the Second is only a king in name, when it comes to facts. He is only a little lieutenant. He has been put on the job by a bigger and stronger man—Count Frederic—the real power behind the throne in Gretshoffen—a strong and handsome man—be sure you don't fall in love with him. What Count Frederic plans no one knows. Perhaps he has his own eyes on the throne—we can't tell what may happen. I say it is a tense sort of a place, Gretshoffen. But Gretshoffen is broke. Michael, the king is broke. Count Frederic, the Warwick of Gretshoffen, also is broke. That is why they tried to make a loan in our own country."

When Michael the First died his treasury disappeared. He was rich, the old king was—rich in the name of Gretshoffen. But the crown jewels, the imperial securities, the crown treasures of all sorts, the imperial mintage of every description—they disappeared.

"There was rumor that the old king hid his treasures somewhere, but that he left some sort of a mysterious record by which they might be traced. No one knows just what was left for that record. It is known, however, or supposed, at least, that it was put into the possession of an old servant—one of the few men the old king trusted. But this man finally gave up some part of what he knew—part of the proof, whatever it was—to the new king, when he himself was about to die."

"Between them, Count Frederic and Michael the Second bankrupted this kingdom, or at least Michael did. It was their oyster, and they opened it and scraped the shell."

"Now, in case the Count Frederic, the big finger, or his man Graham, or the little King Michael, the Second, should ever get hold of the remaining clue to the whereabouts of old King Michael's treasury—pouf!—you know what would happen then. There would, Miss Kitty, to quote a certain American ballad, 'be a hot time in the old town' in that case."

"It's a story!" said Kitty Gray, drawing a long breath. But a troubled light came to her eyes at the same time. "How will a fellow dig it out?" she asked whimsically.

"Come to me at any time," said Count Thompson. "I'll see that you have good protection in this city. If within my proper official relations I may do so, I'll help you in your own work as I may. But I need not say, mum's the word."

"The same to you, Mr. Consul," said Kitty Gray. She held out her hand, with a straight gaze of her wide, gray eyes which both gave and invited confidence.

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

"Kings and queens!" murmured Count Thompson, hands in pockets. "Now, about queens!"

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

"Kings and queens!" murmured Count Thompson, hands in pockets. "Now, about queens!"

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

"Kings and queens!" murmured Count Thompson, hands in pockets. "Now, about queens!"

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

"Kings and queens!" murmured Count Thompson, hands in pockets. "Now, about queens!"

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

"Kings and queens!" murmured Count Thompson, hands in pockets. "Now, about queens!"

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

"Kings and queens!" murmured Count Thompson, hands in pockets. "Now, about queens!"

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

"Kings and queens!" murmured Count Thompson, hands in pockets. "Now, about queens!"

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

"Kings and queens!" murmured Count Thompson, hands in pockets. "Now, about queens!"

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

"Kings and queens!" murmured Count Thompson, hands in pockets. "Now, about queens!"

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

"Kings and queens!" murmured Count Thompson, hands in pockets. "Now, about queens!"

Count Thompson stood, his hands in his pockets, looking out of the window as Kitty crossed the pavement to her waiting taxicab. She made a comely figure in her trim traveling dress and jaunty French chapeau—a figure such as one may see on the avenue of a sunny Sunday afternoon, or in some time of festivity.

sturdy build, of broad shoulders and deep chest—a man half a giant, one would have said—but his eyes dropped as they met the stern gaze of him he addressed, as though he might have been his master.

"You found it—you succeeded, then—tell me!"

"Excellency—yes."

The newcomer extended a hand which was trembling slightly. "I swear it was in this bag"—he offered a little chamois bag tied with a ribbon at the top—a bag which apparently had been once suspended by this broken silken cord.

"You say it was in this bag—then why not now?"

The tall man caught the little receptacle from the other's hands—ripped it wide—abook out the contents. There fell into his hand upon the table near which he stood, only a few trinkets of a woman's toilet—a little, ornate handkerchief, a piece of powdered chamois—a coin—yes, a coin.

The tall man held this up in his hand, his face distorted with rage.

"What! a half-dollar of your cursed money! Curse you!" He half shrieked, and as he did so flung the piece full in the other's face, with such violence that the skin broke under its impact.

"The coin!" went on the enraged speaker—"what do you mean? Do you mock me, Frederic, your real monarch? You shall die for this. You have failed—you have not found it—you have lost it!"

His own countenance starting from his head in anger, he strode forward and caught the throat of Roaleu in his two mighty hands, shaking him as he would have shaken a child. At length he flung him from him, silent, bleeding, his face a mass of blood.

"Go!" he said, and flung him toward the door.

It was as Kitty Gray, after leaving the American consulate, was speeding toward her hotel in her hired vehicle that she caught sight of a man staggering from the side entrance of a great mansion house of white marble front. He seemed to have escaped from some calamity—from an attempted robbery or murder. Without pausing to ponder upon propriety, she halted her vehicle and sprang out, hastening over to the sufferer, who stood at the edge of the curb.

"What is wrong?" "You are in trouble—you are hurt!" Shall I take you home—to some hospital—to the hotel? Come in, you are welcome."

The man looked at her mutely, hesitating.

"Come, I will carry you where you like." She had him by the arm now, and was unsuitably, as he seemed, hurried him into the door of her own vehicle and followed him.

"The Ritz, driver," she directed. And so, in the role of Samaritan, Kitty Gray made her second arrival that day at the stately hotel which she had selected as her own abode.

All through the ride the man at her side remained silent, suffering acutely. He turned his face away. Again there came to Kitty Gray the strange feeling that she felt something which she ought to recognize, she could not tell what. In truth, sympathy had the better of curiosity for the time. She did not examine her strange companion closely, only speaking to him an occasional word of sympathy and assurance. Suddenly remembering that she did not know who he was, and remembering also that her own conduct might be held as singular, she turned her companion over to the head porter of the hotel, and hurried away to her own rooms.

Apparently the disgraced stranger remained at the hotel that night, for when, at eleven o'clock of the morning, Kitty Gray emerged, properly arrayed for a morning ride, she saw the stranger in the hotel lobby, his face swathed in bandages. He seemed to be waiting for the approach of some one, her some words in a tongue which she did not understand—then changed to French—and then to English.

"If mademoiselle would permit me," he said, "I might be of use, even as I am. I know the city. Might I act as courier for the time? I would show my gratitude, if mademoiselle regards it as proper for me thus to do so."

Kitty Gray, actuated by no definite purpose, but governed by the impulse which she trusted to be true, turned suddenly toward the curb where stood her hired motor car, and motioned to the man to come.

They passed on down the wide avenue of the capital, a strange couple enough. Kitty looked curiously about her, studiously examining everything she saw. Yes, the old city was beautiful, with its long lines of great trees, its stately edifices built by hands long stilled in death. Soon she began to feel the need of a guide, and unobtrusively the muffled figure at her side quietly suggested the information that might be of service. He pointed out some of the other large hotels—mansion houses of this or that court official, the hall of justice, the city hall, the great cathedrals, the royal palace, the palace of the Count Frederic.

"Yes," exclaimed Kitty Gray, "it was here that I found you yesterday. The hotel of the Count Frederic. I know, yes, but why—how did you—"

Her companion suddenly raised a hand, touched her arm gently, requesting silence.

A great car, splendidly equipped and driven at a rushing pace, came out of the very street at which Kitty Gray had found her companion on the previous day. In the car, his gloved hands resting on his stick, sat a tall man, erect, strikingly handsome in his own way, imperious of air and bold of gaze.

Kitty Gray did not notice that her companion had shrunk back low into the seat. Her own eyes met those of the occupant of the advancing car.

Kitty Gray was young and more than a little handsome. She had taken pains to turn herself out well as she might in view of the possible surroundings she might meet on her strange quest. To the bold eyes of the tall stranger, she must have seemed fair enough to look upon, for suddenly, as he passed, he stared at her directly, bowed, raised his hat—yes, even smiled.

"Who was that man?" demanded Kitty Gray. "Count Frederic—the pretender?"

And yet how like he looked to pictures I have seen. There was a man—an international spy, they said in our country—some strange foreigner—at the time of the Gretshoffen loan fiasco. Yes, the two faces are strangely alike. Who is he?"

"Of the other I know nothing," rejoined her companion, "but this—he is the Count Frederic."

"Hush, mademoiselle, for God's sake hush! We do not dare—vous must not dare."

"Follow!" said Kitty Gray, sharply. "Now, tell me more."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

1—"It's Odd, Isn't It?" She Said.

2—"I Choost Sold It to Dot Young Lady Who Went Out."

3—"You Shall Die for This!"

4—"What is wrong?" "You are in trouble—you are hurt!" Shall I take you home—to some hospital—to the hotel? Come in, you are welcome."

5—"The Ritz, driver,"

FELLOW BABIES!
WHEN, IN THE COURSE OF HUMAN
EVENTS, ARE YOU GOING TO ASSERT YOUR INDEPENDENCE AND SELECT YOUR OWN PARENTS?
ARE YOU FOREVER GOING TO SUBMIT YOUR DESTINY TO THE CAPRICE OF A WALL-EYED, BAD-HEADED,
DODDERING OLD STERN WHO ALWAYS GETS HIS ORDERS MIXED?
COME, HIT THE SANDWICH TRAIL WITH ME AND
LET US FIND OUR OWN HOMES!

COMIC SECTION

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

THE STANDARD SOUTHERN NEWSPAPER

SUNDAY, JULY 4, 1915.

HOME WANTED BY A BABY

BY CLARE VICTOR DWIGGINS

SCIENCE AND NEAR-SCIENCE UP-TO-DATE

Some Facts You May Not Know

FOR illuminated road signs in Germany an acetylene generator has been developed that does not require attention often than once a month.

A NEW electric sealing wax melter keeps the wax at the right temperature and applies any amount desired to the object that is to be sealed.

A GERMAN inventor has patented a method for using carbonic acid gas in a machine to spray mortar or plaster on a wall to hasten its setting.

PORTIONS of store windows can be converted into blackboards for sign writing by sandblasting the outside of the glass and painting the inside.

Uncle Sam's Newest Gun Throws Lead Like Water From Garden Hose

UNCLE SAM today possesses one of the deadliest rapid-fire guns in the world. No advancing army could face the terrific hail of death that it pours forth at the rate of 400 shots a minute.

The new weapon was invented by Berny Mercier, a Frenchman, and purchased outright by the United States. It is being manufactured for general army use and is looked upon as one of the most effective weapons for field use ever designed.

The new rapid-fire weapon is small enough to be handled by one man, can be moved rapidly from place to place, and, as a consequence, is available for almost any use.

The method of using the gun is not unlike that of the common garden hose. Firing 400 shots a minute means that an almost continuous stream of lead pours from its barrel. As it is moved about at the will of the runner, an advancing column of soldiers would be mowed down like grain before a sickle.

New and Queer Bits of News

TO PREVENT waste an Englishman has invented a mustard pot in which pressure on a piston on top forces a small amount of the contents out a spout.

IN A Pennsylvania railroad town trainmen are called to duty by flashing their names and other information on the screens of motion picture theaters.

KING GEORGE of England is the inventor of a stove that will serve as an open grate in one room of a house and cook meals in the usual way in another.

FOR protecting propellers of small boats from injury there has been invented a guard consisting of a parallel rods to be fastened to the stern of a boat.

Panama Canal Now Illuminated by Lamps That Light Themselves

THE Panama Canal from end to end is illuminated by a string of brilliant lamps, which light themselves at sunset and put themselves out when the sun rises again. This marvelous fairy tale of modern science is due to the efforts of Swedish engineers to find some economical means of lighting their long, sparsely populated coast. The reefs and narrow inlets are a menace to skippers and fishermen, but the expense of engaging lighthouse-keepers and providing them with the means of livelihood was so great that many dangerous points must necessarily be left unguarded, according to the American-Scandinavian Review.

The discovery that acetone dissolves great quantities of acetylene formed the basis of the invention by which Gustaf Dalen created his boon to mariners, the self-tending lamp. It afforded a practical and economical means of transporting large amounts of this highly illuminant gas; the

Ideas That May Be Converted Into Cash

ALL about you are inventions or simple household devices that tend to make life easier, happier or healthier. Perhaps you have discovered or invented something of the sort. If not you see articles of this kind that have been originated by others. Perhaps you have seen a new safeguard to cope with umbrella thieves, a means of keeping baby from falling from the high chair, or a holder for hot implements on the cook stove. This newspaper desires to help in distributing these time and labor saving ideas broadcast. It will make your help profitable by buying your two best ideas on these subjects each week. Five dollars will be paid for the best description of such a device and $3 for the second idea selected. If possible a photograph, a drawing or a rough pencil sketch should accompany your contribution. The subjects may involve anything that could be classified as science or near-science. Address Science Editor, care of this newspaper.

Villages That Grow About Trades

A PECULIAR form of Russian life is the occurrence of villages devoted to a particular branch of trade. Each village, each district, each province has some special occupation. Thus one province is noted for the manufacture of axes, in another the inhabitants are all engaged in cutting wood for fuel, in another they are all market gardeners and fruit growers.

In some parts of the empire the people all live in villages or towns, there being no solitary dwellings. Among the people of wealth and the nobility there is, of course, much leisure time and much of it is spent in card playing, attending balls and banquets. Card playing seems to be the most fashionable amusement.

As in many of the countries of Europe, much of the trading is done at fairs, where the people for miles around assemble.

TO PROMOTE the industrial and technical utilization of alcohol the Russian ministry of finance has offered prizes totaling about $136,000 for the best inventions in this respect.

Here's the Greatest Cake Ever Built

HOUSEWIVES, how would you like to bake a cake of the following dimensions and ingredients:

Eighteen yards long, eight yards broad and more than one-half yard thick, containing thirty-six bushels of flour, 200 gallons of milk, one ton of butter, a huge quantity of yeast and 5,000 eggs?

Such a cake, probably the largest ever made, was served in June, 1730, by Frederick William I., King of Prussia, to his army following a huge repast. The 30,000 soldiers, already glutted, could not eat the entire cake, and remnants of it were distributed among the inhabitants of neighboring towns and villages.

Are the Birds More Scientific Aviators Than Men?

HAVE birds mastered secrets of aviation that still puzzle their human competitors?

The question whether large birds transport smaller ones through the air is one that has led to much observation on the part of students of nature, and some important facts on the subject have recently been brought to light.

Birds do not merely convey their young to the ground. Large birds frequently transport smaller ones in their yearly migrations. The woodcock, when it wishes to convey a young one from a place of danger, presses the tiny bird between her own feet and against her breast and flies with it through the air.

It is a common opinion among the Eskimos that a small bird of the sparrow family is aided in its migratory flights by the wild geese.

The opinion has long been held that cranes are utilized for the same purpose by small birds in crossing the Mediterranean. Several ornithologists have confirmed this popular opinion by their own observation. In the autumn flocks of cranes are seen coming from the north. As they circle over the cultivated plains of Palestine little birds fly up to them, and the twittering of those already settled upon their backs can be plainly heard.

Another observer saw smaller birds rise from the backs of cranes at which a gun had been fired. A Swedish traveler, while staying at Rhodes, saw flocks of storks fly over the sea with numerous small birds perched on their backs.

In England recently a short-eared owl was seen to come "tapping" across the sea. As it alighted on the shore a little bird dropped off its back and flew along the sand. On the broad back of the owl this tiny creature had ridden in safety across the wild North Sea.

Third Seat Easily Constructed

HERE is a simple solution of the "third seat" dilemma in an ordinary two-seated buggy or automobile. Two small boards, constructed to form an "L" shaped device, as shown in the picture, is all that is necessary. The end of this extra seat may be slipped upon the buggy or auto seat between the two passengers. A cushion is placed upon this board and the extra passenger is as comfortable as if provided with a regular, all-to-himself seat.

AUSTRALIA has modified its absolute prohibition of the importation of opium to permit the entry of the drug for medicinal purposes.

Why Cost of Living Is Higher

PEOPLE who imagine that food is getting dearer might well ponder a recent editorial in the British Medical Journal, in which it is pointed out that what most people are paying higher prices for is absolutely unnecessary.

This being true of England, "what would be say if we were familiar with conditions in the United States?" asks the Literary Digest.

"The very cheapest foods, wisely chosen, have all the physiological value of the dearest," says the editorial. "The cheapest American cheese is as nutritious as Stilton or Roquefort, the herring is as nourishing as salmon, the flank or shin of beef as sirloin, margarine as butter, starch as arrowroot, cabbage as asparagus. Moreover, by good cooking cheap food can be made as tasty and appetizing as the dearest, and no less good a stimulant of the digestive juices."

The British Medical Journal extols as a "magnificent basis of diet" the oatmeal and milk with green stuff from the kale yard that used to be the food of the Scots, and mentions as a most tasty, nutritious and excellent meal "the old-fashioned Scotch 'white pudding,' which was made of oatmeal and dripping, flavored with herbs and onion, stuffed into a sausage skin."

The editorial denounces white bread—that is, bread made from bleached flour. "Flour," it says, "is bleached wholesale to make it white. The bleaching enables low grades of flour to be sold as white and enhances the profits of the miller. It is of no value; if anything, it tends to deteriorate the flour. Economically it is a wholly unsound proceeding."

As for canned foods it says: "In the canning of foodstuffs heating to 120 degrees destroys the vitamins."

"The pig," it continues, "scurries and waxes fat on the contents of the waste pail. Children could flourish no less well on the discarded material."

Here's a Perfect Electric Bell

AN ORIGINAL electric bell combination is in use in Paris which is designed to get rid of all trouble caused by the question of batteries, for these are now lodged within the apparatus itself. The usual box bell shape is retained, but the arrangement of the parts is different in this case. All the magnet parts are now lodged under the gong itself.

Origin of Cat and Bag Joke

THOUGH many people frequently use the expression, "Let the cat out of the bag," its origin is not generally known.

It is said to have once been a favorite trick among country folk in England to substitute a cat for one of the young pigs when the latter were taken in bags to market. These bags, in old phraseology, were known as pokes.

If any greenhorn was foolish enough to buy "a pig in a poke"—that is, to purchase the animal without looking at it—the trick was successful, but if he opened the sack to satisfy himself concerning the value of his desired purchase pussy would be sure to jump out.

The "cat was let out of the bag" and the trick was disclosed.

Needles Old as Civilization

NEEDLES were no doubt contemporaneous with the very beginning of civilization, as they were necessary for the fashioning of even the rudest skin garments. In their earliest form they were probably only strong thorns or splinters of wood, bone or stone, for puncturing holes through which to draw the thread. The next step was to make an eye in the splinter, that it might carry the thread at the same time that it pierced the skin, and some very finely fluted and polished needles have been found in prehistoric remains.

Bronze needles have been found in Egyptian tombs that must have been made several thousand years before the Christian era, and similar implements are known to have been in use by the Chinese, Hindus, Chaldeans, Assyrians and other ancient nations at very early periods in their history. The steel needle is believed to have been first made in Spain. It is known that these needles were manufactured at several places in Europe as early as the fourteenth century.

Pins are also of very ancient manufacture. They were made at first of ivory, bone or wood splinters, but bronze pins are found in Egyptian tombs, and also those of silver and gold. The ancient Romans had metal pins, also, and so had other nations. They were made with ornamented heads.

Turtle Slowest of All Living Creatures

OF ALL living creatures the turtle is among the slowest in its movement and exercise of brain power. Yet a well-known American naturalist has succeeded in training three of these creatures to do a number of little tricks.

He places them, one above the other, on spoons. If a piece of cabbage or other green stuff is held out in front of them they will make a complete circuit, all moving in unison, keeping their balance and not tumbling off. The bigger turtle will also ring a bell. This it grasps in one of its forefeet, jerks off the ground and then gives a shake.

Putting New Arms On Wounded German Soldiers

The Soldier Shown in the Right Hand Picture Was Wounded in Both Legs During the Fighting in the Champagne District. Convalescent, He Still Suffers From Ankylosis, or Partial Stiffness of the Limbs. The Hospital Attendant Is Now Giving Him a "Mechanical Massage," Which, SCIENCE has again linked arms with the German spirit of thoroughness—this time in the interest of the wounded soldier.

Queer-looking mechanical appliances have been installed in the hospitals of Berlin to prevent ankylosis. This is a surgical term for a condition wherein tissues and ligaments become partly immovable because of inflammation, infection, or like causes.

For instance, when a German soldier is wounded in a limb, first attention is given to the wound itself. After it begins to heal the limb is placed in the newly invented apparatus and moved back and forth to prevent stiffness; and, in some cases, permanent lameness. Similar treatment is given to limbs that have become dislocated.

MECHANICAL MASSAGE SERVICE

It Is Believed, Will Put Him in Condition for Active Service Again in the Near Future. A Dislocated Shoulder Is Treated in Similar Manner, as Shown to the Left. It Is Declared That the War Thus Has Caused Tremendous Advancement in Medical Science.

In other words, the same treatment might be termed "mechanical massage," for it embodies the same principles contained in the Swedish movement and other massage methods. One can readily see its advantage over the latter, which would require a great many nurses on account of the big list of wounded soldiers.

FISHING for SUBMARINES with BOMB BAIT

DIAGRAM SHOWING THREE PHASES OF ATTACK AND DESTRUCTION OF A SUBMARINE

THOMAS E. LAKE
 With New Device,
 Says He Can Destroy Instantly
 the Deep Sea Terror of Modern Warfare

By Thomas E. Lake.

ONE man in an aeroplane can destroy a submarine in less time than it takes to hook and gaff a weakfish or a blunfish, and the method is much the same.

Instead of trawling from the deck of a sloop or schooner with a silk line and live bait, you use an aeroplane, a controlling device, the secret of which I am not prepared to divulge as yet, and instead of live bait a contact bomb of terrific explosive force.

As is shown in the diagram, the aeroplane skims over the sea with the bomb suspended from the controlling device, some distance above the water. Now, contrary to the belief of many persons, a submarine does not travel beneath the surface all the time. Consideration of the life of her storage batteries, air for breathing and speed make it desirable to travel at the surface whenever practicable without risk of discovery by the enemy.

A submarine generally travels at the surface, or in the "awash" condition, until in the vicinity of her intended attack. When within a reasonable distance of her victim she submerges so that only a few feet of water is above the periscope. In this condition she would lay in wait for or proceed toward her enemy, from time to time raising her periscope above the surface to direct her course and to aim her torpedo.

When thus submerged she would be invisible to a surface ship, but could be detected from above. The air scouts claim that even when a submarine dives very deep they can see a dark patch in the water and at least give warning to a surface ship that the undersea terror is near.

Assuming that a submarine had been located by the operator of an aeroplane, even though the craft were considerable distance below the surface of the water, he would lower the bomb to the position shown in Figure 1, allowing it to trail about fifteen or twenty feet above the water.

Then he would direct his course so that the aeroplane would cut across just ahead of the submarine, meanwhile reducing its speed as much as possible, for speed at this juncture would be a distinct disadvantage.

When about to cross the submarine's path the aviator would release the controlling mechanism, allowing the bomb to fall into the water and sink, as in Figure 2. This brings the wire in contact with the periscope or any other projection of the submarine, and the bomb would thus be drawn against the side of the craft and explode on contact, as in Figure 3, the wire being automatically released from the control mechanism.

It takes more time to explain this attack than it does to execute it. In practice it would occur so quickly as to give absolutely no warning to the submarine, destroying her and her crew. They would not have the slightest chance to escape or to know what had happened to them.

The hopelessness of trying to drop unattached bombs on a submarine, either submerged or at the surface, considering the velocity at which an aeroplane travels, will be apparent, but with the trawling device the thing is simpler. In dropping a free bomb it is necessary to strike the target with the missile itself. In trawling, once the wire fouls the submarine the bomb is certain to find its mark, and it will explode when it strikes it and not before.

I have recently patented a new type of flying machine, which is shown in the diagram and in a photograph on this page. It is particularly adaptable to the trawling attack on submarines because of the great speed of which it is capable and also the extremely low speed at which it can be driven and still maintain its buoyancy and stability.

Although this machine seems to be the best for attacks against submarines, it was not with this particular object in view that I experimented with it. The main idea was to develop a safe machine—an "even-keel" aeroplane.

As an aero expression the term "even-keel" designates a type of flying machine which maintains a horizontal position at all times, both fore and aft as well as lateral trim considered. In addition to the even-keel feature, the wings of this machine are flexible and may be adjusted to various curvatures to suit the thrust of the propellers and the weight to be carried at variable speeds.

Probably the most important and novel feature of this machine is the method of adjusting the wings so that the machine can make a vertical landing when so desired. No type of flying machine will ever be safe unless some means are provided to insure a safe landing when headway is lost. The engine of today is not so perfect as to be proof against sudden stopping through ignition or other trouble.

The submarine and the aeroplane seem to be the two weapons in this war against which there is so far no adequate defence. Aeroplanes have been used to detect the presence of submarines, but they have not attacked them effectively. With the trawling device perfected the aeroplane would become the conqueror of land and sea. In spite of their infancy they have been proved indispensable for both army and navy. They are of the greatest possible value as scouts, and although they have not as yet done as well as was expected from the offensive standpoint they will surely be developed along that line, so that an attack from the air will be more horrible than any artist has ever drawn it.

Musk Is Getting Scarce.

TACHILENU, China, is one of the principal musk markets of the world. During the last few years a large firm with headquarters in Paris stationed a representative at Tachileni for the sole purpose of buying musk. It is very difficult to obtain pure musk, and every pod has to be carefully examined. While musk is exported at several points along the Tibetan border, the best quality is obtained at Tachileni. Three thousand pounds of musk on an average are shipped every year from Chungking, and it is estimated that fully half of this amount passes through Tachileni.

Most of this musk is sent to France, where it is employed in the manufacture of perfumery. The musk is not only used for the perfume that bears this name but is a most essential ingredient in all of the better classes of perfumery. Musk has certain radioactive properties that cause the odor of the perfume to be carried through the air in a way that would otherwise be impossible. The radioactive property of the musk affects most peculiarly the natives who carry it. If it is held close to the body for any length of time it produces sores that are probably similar in character to those caused by pure radium. The musk pod above referred to is a sort of gland or pouch of the male deer, and the musk itself is secreted only during certain seasons of the year. It is said that this highly odiferous secretion is provided by nature to enable the musk deer to be followed by its mate. This species of animal is much smaller than is generally supposed.

THOMAS E. LAKE

Mexico and Germany.

Mark Sullivan, in Collier's, writes: "Those political philosophers who claim that the president's Mexican policy is a case of 'the blind leading the blind' are even more emphatic. They point out that the policy of Mr. Wilson's German policy has been so different from that of Mr. Taft that it is almost impossible to know how popular. They claim that if the German policy had not come to the attention of the public, we would forget the Mexican policy, then President Wilson would have been able to have been unsatisfactory to the public to a degree that would have given him hope of winning him in office."

Another Mexican policy of German policy is the policy of the United States in foreign affairs will be likely to dominate the result will be the same. Even such important domestic legislation as the tariff, the Sherman law, and the control of corporations will slip into the TENNIS—AS I PLAY IT. Maurice E. McLoughlin, the world's greatest tennis player, a most interesting and a most instructive book, which he learned to play that most popular game—tennis. With some 100 illustrations, he found the following subjects: Climbing to the Expert Class. Your Racket. With Some Hints on Proper Grip. Proper Dress for the Game, etc. Courts and Equipment. The Game. The Service; Receiving; Or the Striker-Out; The Forehand; The Backhand; The Backswing; The Forehand; The Head Work—The Smash; Doubles; Practice and Training; Ladies' Tennis; The Tennis Net; The Tennis Ball; Tennis Travels, and illustrated with 72 reproductions of the author's own work. By Richard Norris Williams, second national champion of the United States, and a former Wimbledon champion, but tells of several little points which will prove instructive to the tennis player. Published by the Jordan Company, New York.)

[illegible]

BLUE BOOK OF GUATEMALA.
El "Libro Azul" de Guatemala, 1915.
Narrative and history of the lives of the people of Guatemala, and of the country. There are special articles relative to commerce, agriculture and mineral resources. The book is the most valuable to the latest, most complete and most authoritative work ever issued on this subject. It is the work of the Ministry of Central America. It is dedicated "To His Excellency, Manuel Estrada, Guatemalan President." The book is the property of Guatemala, whose picture is on the cover. The book is well illustrated and will prove very valuable as a reference book in any library.

Preparedness.

(Mark Sullivan, in Collier's.)

One critic of the present makes the point that since the first of August last year, when the European war broke out, the United States has been in a Democratic administration to make our army and navy stronger and single handed to win any war more efficiently. If this is true, it is, even as things stand, the best of all possible worlds for those who are in control of national affairs. And if our foreign relations should be so managed that we should never be called upon to prepare during so long a period of warning could well turn out to be the best of all possible worlds for us, to say nothing of the country.

Because from 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 tons of potatoes rot every year in Germany, the government is fostering the the former rate entirely dependent on the demand for articles of luxury, are in even worse condition, since over 90 per cent of the population are without this branch of industry have been deprived of their means of livelihood.

Printers and the glass cutters, too, among the 6,500 members of the largest trade union in these branches there are 1,200 wholly unemployed. The unemployed besides $25 serving with them.

Not only have men been affected by bad trade conditions, but also women. Queen Wilhelmina takes great interest in the welfare of the unemployed women and during the war, has purchased and sent to The Netherlands Union for Poor Relief, 100,000 pairs of shoes.

gloves, 10,000 pairs of socks and 10,000 pairs of mittens. The queen, as a matvide more money for this object, has exercised her inborn Dutch economy to such an extent that tradeunion of The Hague have begun to grumble. Every cent her majesty can spare is handed over to the various societies. The queen has also been very busy entertaining for the past ten months, and this has had the effect of causing her to have almost none left over to follow her example—much to the disgust of the storekeepers, for Holland possesses in proportion to its size a much larger army than any other country in Europe.

HOME, SWEET HOME.

Words by John Howard Payne.

Music by Sir Henry Bishop.

"Home, Sweet Home," Universally Accepted as a Folk Song, Is Classified as Harmful in Its Effect on the Spirits. "Old Black Joe" Has a Similar Result.

OLD BLACK JOE.

Words and Music by Stephen C. Foster.

THE late Rev. H. R. Haweis, in his Musical Memories, predicted some years ago that music would become a powerful and acknowledged therapeutic. There were many who scoffed a little at the idea that music was, or ever would be, anything but a pleasant way of whiling away a little time and creating a pleasurable diversion. But the clergyman-author stood by his convictions.

Science has lately proved that the Rev. Mr. Haweis predicted rightly. Music stimulates the physical functions and heightens the mental activities. Interesting reference to this discovery is made in The Physiology of Faith and Fear, a book on health and disease from the pen of Dr. William S. Sadler. The physician tells what songs are strengthening and stimulating and what songs are weakening and depressing.

In view of the interest now shown in the prediction of the Rev. Mr. Haweis it might be well to reprint it here.

"There are certain moods of exhausted feeling in which certain kinds of music would set like poison," wrote the clergyman. "There are other kinds of music which soothe and—if I may use the word—lubricate the worn ways of the nervous centers."

"You will ask, What music is good for that? We reply, judgment and common sense; and, above all, sympathy, affectional and musical sympathy, will partly be your guide, but experience must decide. Let some friend well versed in the divine art sit at the piano, and let the tired one lie on a couch and prescribe for herself or for himself.

"This will happen:

"Do not play that 'Tannhauser' overture just now, it wears me out; I cannot bear it, or 'Yes, sing that 'Du Bist Die Ruh,' and after that I must hear Mendelssohn's 'Nocturne' out of 'The Midsummer Night's Dream,' and then—what comes next must be left to the tact and quick sympathy of the musician."

"I have known cases where an hour of this treatment did more good than bottlefuls of bark and patiflous of globules; but I do not wish to overstate the case. I merely plead for an unrecognized truth, and I point to a new vocation—the vocation of the musical healer."

Poets and essayists have long believed in the psychological and physiological effects of music. For instance:

To Music, to Balm His Fever.

Charm me asleep, and melt me so,
With thy delicious numbers,
That bringest rapt, hence I go
Away in easy slumbers.
Ease my sick head,
And make me bed,
Thou power that canst sever
From me this ill,
And quickly still,
Though thou not kill,
My fever.

TONIC
IN A TUNE

What Song Do You Like Best—Is It Strengthening and Stimulating or Depressing and Weakening? Science Classifies the Old Favorites as to Their Effect on Mind and Body—Indorses "Onward, Christian Soldiers" and Blacklists "Home, Sweet Home."

These Songs Are Classified as—Strengthening.

"Dixie."
"America."
"My Maryland."
"Rock of Ages."
"Yankee Doodle."
"The Old Oaken Bucket."
"The Old Folks at Home."
"My Old Kentucky Home."
"Jesus, Lover of My Soul."
"Nearer, My God, to Thee."
"Listen to the Mocking Bird."
"Onward, Christian Soldiers."
"Blest Be the Tie That Binds."
"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

Depressing.

"Ben Bolt."
"Old Black Joe."
"Old Cabin Home."
"Stand Up for Jesus."
"Home, Sweet Home."
"John Brown's Body."
"My Jesus, I Love Thee."
"Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me."
"I Would Not Live Always."
"We Are Tenting Tonight."
"Depths of Mercy Can There Be."
"Do They Think of Me at Home?"
"Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken."
"Behold, a Stranger at the Door."

Thou sweetly canst convert the same
From a consuming fire,
Into a gentle-licking flame,
And make it this expire.
Then make me weep
My pained asleep,
And give me such repose,
That I, poor I,
May think thereby,
I live and die
'Mongst roses.

—[Herrick.]

No less a believer in music as a stimulant was Where Reciprocity Wouldn't Do.

"You kick a good deal about the beds and the meals," said the old farmer.
"Well?"
"Suppose I was to do the kicking about your shores and your appetite?"

YANKEE DOODLE.

Words by Dr. Schackburg.

"Yankee Doodle" and "Onward, Christian Soldiers," Typical of the Songs That Are Inspiring and Beneficial in Their Action on the Mental Faculties.

ONWARD, CHRISTIAN SOLDIERS.

Words by S. Baring-Gould.

Music by A. S. Sullivan.

1. On - ward, Christian sol - diers, Marching to the war, With the cross of Je - sus.
Emerson, who wrote: "I think sometimes could I only have music on my own terms, could I live in a great city, and know where I could go whenever I wished the ablation and inundation of musical waves, that were a bath and a medicine."

The following quotation from St. Cecilia's Day, by Pope, coincides with the views expressed above:
Music the fiercest grief can charm,
And fate's severest rage disarm.
Music can soften pain to ease,
And make despair and madness please;
Our joys below it can improve,
And antedate the bliss above.

Writing on Music's Refining Tone, J. Beveridge declared: "That which I have found the best recreation to my mind and body, whenever either of them stands in need of it, is music, which exercises at once both mind and body, especially when I play myself; for then, methinks, the same motion that my hands make upon the instrument makes upon my heart."

And now, after an analytical survey by science, it has been decreed that the poets and essayists were right in their conclusions.

Dr. William S. Sadler, who has made a study of the subject, has this to say:

"The author has carried forward many experiments for the purpose of ascertaining the psychological and physiological effects of music. These are largely dependent on its associations, the general environment, the individual's appreciation of music, and also upon his personal associations with the particular piece of music under consideration."
"While the personal element is largely concerned

In determining the physiological effects of music there are certain tunes and forms of rhythm which always stimulate the physical functions, increasing the blood pressure, the force of the heart beat and the depth of respiration, as well as heightening the mental activities.

"We find that a certain piece of music will produce stimulating and exciting effects in one patient, while it produces sedative and relaxing effects in another."

"Even in ancient times the psychotherapeutic value of music must have been recognized, for David was employed to play before Saul when the latter found himself in bad humor."

"From experiments made by myself and others who have worked in this field it has been found that the general effects of certain well-known musical selections upon the average listener are as follows:

"Music which is generally strengthening and stimulating: 'Dixie,' 'America,' 'My Maryland,' 'Rock of Ages,' 'Yankee Doodle,' 'The Old Oaken Bucket,' 'The Old Folks at Home,' 'My Old Kentucky Home,' 'Jesus, Lover of My Soul,' 'Nearer, My God, to Thee,' 'Listen to the Mocking Bird,' 'Onward, Christian Soldiers,' 'Blest Be the Tie That Binds,' 'All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name,' 'A Mighty Fortress Is Our God.'"

"Music which is generally weakening and depressing: 'Ben Bolt,' 'Old Black Joe,' 'Old Cabin Home,' 'Stand Up for Jesus,' 'Home, Sweet Home,' 'John Brown's Body,' 'My Jesus, I Love Thee,' 'Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me,' 'I Would Not Live Always,' 'We Are Tenting Tonight,' 'The Star-Spangled Banner,' 'Depths of Mercy Can There Be,' 'Do They Think of Me at Home?' 'Jesus, I My Cross Have Taken,' 'Behold, a Stranger at the Door.'"

English Sparrow Has Been Revealed to Be Possessor of Real Virtues

THE English sparrow, or the Anglo-American sparrow, has found a friend. A man has risen in his place to be just, although the sparrow may be blessed, yet, in his opinion, denunciation of the bird has been carried too far.

The sparrow seems never to have much concerned himself or herself with the charges made against them. They have gone their way, fighting, quarreling, chirping and eating, as though perfectly conscious of the rectitude of their course. They seem never to have troubled themselves very much about conciliating public opinion. They may have heard that it gives offense to certain persons to build their nests in the roof gutters and the rain spouts, to hold mass meetings on the porch railings and to engage in riotous and tumultuous controversies at 4 a. m. just under or over the windows of late sleepers, but if they ever heard of such things they have treated the information with a good deal of indifference. There was a time when much was expected of the sparrow. He was imported to clean up the insects in the parks and to make himself generally useful. He was acclaimed by press agents as a bird who would attack caterpillars without thought of the consequences to himself. He was fearless in the face of bugs. While he would prove himself a terror to the forces of the insects, he would be a brotherly and sisterly bird to his American cousin birds—if such a relationship could be. But, in the opinion of many Americans, he has not lived up to his advertisement.

Not many weeks ago a distinguished ornithologist, James Buckland, wrote an article on birds which was included in the annual reports of the Smithsonian Institution. In this report he said: "The remarkable instances of the service of birds to man include the introduction of the English sparrow into New Zealand with the resultant elimination of the thistle and caterpillar, which were ruining the land and crops."

Enemies of the English sparrow may insist that the bird has conducted himself with more propriety in New Zealand than in the United States, and that the Anglo-American sparrow should be sent to the antipodes for a course of training in the duties of birds toward men. However, up in Michigan a state game warden says that his deputies have examined the stomachs of sixty-two English sparrows and found in every stomach injurious seeds and insects. Some persons who claim to know the habits of the English sparrow may say that the reason that injurious seeds and insects were found in the stomachs of sixty-two English sparrows in Michigan was that in Michigan there were sixty-two English sparrows that could not find anything else to eat.

Mythical Tales of White Races Lead to Fruitless Expeditions Into Africa

THERE exists in the minds of many civilized peoples a curious fascination with respect to the idea that in remote parts of the tropics, amid the dark-skinned races, there flourish mysteriously isolated white tribes bearing a strong resemblance to the civilized branches of the Caucasian race.

Who they are and whence they came no one knows; native fables afford no explanation. Once it was thought that forgotten white explorers might have built up unknown kingdoms in the wild places of the earth, but upon examination these theories vanish as rapidly as do the white tribes themselves, and the ultimate explanation is almost prosaic.

Yet so strong a hold has the idea gained that even in the beginning of the twentieth century the possibility of the existence of genuine white races is not altogether scoffed at. Less than twelve years ago an American officer engaged in the operations against the Moros in the Philippines collected apparently substantial evidence relating to a mysterious white tribe in the island of Mindanao. The mountainous district in the center of this island has never been explored and even the coast is not well known.

But along the seaboard many stories are told of the fierce white people who have their home in the forest-clad mountains of the interior. Eyewitnesses depose to having seen a strange fair-complexioned girl, who fled toward the hills as soon as she was addressed. Other men and women of a light-complexioned race are said to have been seen by more venturesome natives who were bold enough to approach the wild mountain district. The American officer was so impressed that he determined to conduct an exploring party across the center of the island. But apparently the mysterious white folk had vanished for the world has as yet heard nothing of his search being crowned with success.

Arabia, however, can with more reason boast of a white tribe. For years stories of such a race have been told in the Persian Gulf, and an American missionary stationed at Muscat alluded some years ago to "coffee-house babble in eastern Oman concerning a mysterious race of light-complexioned people who live somewhere in the mountains, shun strangers and speak a language all their own."

Various theories have been propounded to explain the fable, but probably the explanation is to be found in the narrative of a journey made to Oman in 1878 by Colonel S. R. Miles, a British officer. Colonel Miles, in the course of his travels nearly forty years ago, came across a town named Shorah in the heart of the Green Mountains. This strange place was perched like an eagle's nest on the top of a great cliff, and was inhabited by people of lighter skin than that of the tribes in the interior. They rarely descended to the plains and refused to mix with or intermarry with the Arabs.

Joking with Death For a Cause

How the Nerves of French Recruits Are Steeled to the Horrors of the Battlefield Before They Approach the Firing Line by Pseudo Guillotines

Most Remarkable Photograph That Has Come From the European War

ONE would think that soldiers encamped only 250 meters from the trenches of a European battlefield would care to dismiss death from their minds so far as possible. But do they? Not the French veterans—at least those who not so long ago were in the village of Picardy, in northern France.

In this picturesque community, nestling on the edge of an area scythe-swept by the Grim Reaper, daily arrived recruits for the battalions to which the veterans belonged. They were young fellows, these recruits, and it was not to their discredit that a haunting fear gripped their hearts. Battle-steeped veterans will tell you that the newcomers only experienced what most every warrior experiences when he comes within earshot of rumbling cannon and the spiteful crack of small arms.

Where the Structure Stood.

On the side of a hill near Picardy, its outline half-hidden by the shadow of an old building, stood a queer looking structure, its two upright posts surmounted by a cross beam. Several hats, civilian hats, hung from wooden pegs driven into knotholes. To you the structure would have proved interesting as soon as you saw that it consisted in part of an oblique-edged knife; interesting, that's all. But to young recruits the upright posts, the hats, the knife blood-stained spelled something sinister and terrible.

It was a guillotine!

Why was it there? What the reason for punishment by decapitation? These and other questions flitted through the minds of the fresh troopers as they gazed terror-stricken at the deadly machine. Spies? Yes, it must be for spies, they reasoned daily.

One morning after they had gone through the routine of camp life and were prepared to take to the trenches the recruits were assembled about 150 feet from the guillotine. The veterans cautioned them not to approach nearer. Soon several of the veterans were seen to carry a struggling something, presumably a human being, toward the death-dealing machine. The head of the huddled figure was thrust in front of the oblique-edged knife, someone released the cord which held it aloft, and the sharp edge fell swiftly and with force.

A gory mass dropped into a bucket.

A Dozen Victims Fall.

Body after body, for such they seemed, were thrust beneath the blade—until a dozen or so felt its keen edge and ceased to struggle. The executioners gravely carried the still forms away, leaving only those things which looked like heads in the bucket.

Almost every person is made ill and faint on witnessing a first execution. The recruits at Picardy were no exception. Some of them broke down and cried hysterically. Others beat a hasty retreat. One actually swooned. And all the while the veteran soldiers seemed to perform their horrible duties as if they were nothing to act squeamish about.

A few hours after the ordeal to which the recruits had been subjected—a sufficient time for shaky nerves to steady themselves to a degree near normal—they were told the reason for the gruesome use of the guillotine.

And this was the explanation, as given by one who acted as spokesman for the veterans:

"A medical officer who has been making a study of the 'psychology of courage' at the front says that most recruits confess to a feeling of fear. This feeling only wears off after several days of fighting."

"We do not want you boys to quail before death even for one day. We want to fight alongside of men steeled from the start against the sickening sight of blood and mangled bodies—and we know of no better way to steel you than to show you blood and death before you go into the trenches."

Only an Experiment After All.

"So we constructed a guillotine. The supposed bodies that you saw placed under the sharp blade of the knife were nothing more than suits of clothes stuffed with straw. The blood, or rather what looked to you like blood, was another bit of deception. Psychologically speaking, the effect of the sham executions today was as shocking as though they had been real, for the reason that at the time you really believed them to be real. You'll go into the trenches now hardened to sights of death. And you'll be better soldiers for it. To take the lives of others will be all in a day's work."

Whether the veteran's words proved true is not known. But, in any event, it was an interesting, though gruesome, experiment.

One must not believe, however, that the soldiers in this greatest of all wars are a bloodthirsty lot. They kill when they have no other choice.

Time and again it has been reported that the men in the trenches on both sides had to be withdrawn and others put in their places because they were becoming too friendly with each other by the exchange of notes. The short distance that lay between the trenches in most instances accounted for their being able to toss each other written messages. On Jan. 7 last a general order issued by the German army authorities prohibited football games in the field between German and English soldiers. A dispatch from Berlin, via London, said:

A DUMMY (old clothes stuffed with straw) has just been "put to death" by the guillotine shown above. Recruits who witness these sham executions are thought to make better soldiers on the principle that they become acquainted with the sight of death before going into battle. Note that the head has been cut from the dummy just above the collar. Soldiers in the background are veterans who assist in carrying out the experiment.

"At Christmas time men from both sides in the western theater of war fraternized and played hotly contested games of football. Officers and men laid aside their arms and watched the players and cheered them on."

"The rivalry became so intense that war was forgotten and the men who kicked the most goals received more applause than is usually given heroes on the fighting line. At one place where the Germans and British played the game was a draw and the players agreed to suspend fighting for two days more in order to decide the issue on two games out of three."

"News of this reached the military authorities and it was decided that football was interfering too much with the business of warfare, aside from the complications arising from too friendly contact between the advance guards. The order was issued forthwith and there will be no more athletic contests between the soldiers, who also are forbidden to fraternize or meet on any terms except those of bitter enmity."

So you see that soldiers are not such murderous individuals after all.

Take Heed—Fear Is No Longer Fashionable

By DELIA AUSTRIAN.

WHATEVER else may be fashionable the man or woman who shows signs of fear or exhibits a lack of emotional control is certainly out of date.

Psychologists and physicians have been giving much time and study to the diseases created by fear and lack of self-control, with the result that many of the supposedly organic diseases have been traced to fear or outbursts of anger.

These important psychological principles have been given greater publicity by the European war. Inspired by patriotism, men and women alike not only have been willing to sacrifice themselves for their countries but at times have even courted danger and have forgotten that there is such a thing as fear or lack of self-control in the world.

Fritz Kreisler explains in his "Four Weeks in the Trenches" that once on the march or in the charging lines exhausted and fearing men became strong and courageous. Most of them became so impervious to any thought of fear that they wrote and slept in the trenches, and even laughed and chatted with no thought of fear. They were no less unafraid when they heard the whizzing and crashing of guns about them on all sides.

Are Soldiers Normally Bloodthirsty?

No!

FOOTBALL games in the field between German and English soldiers are prohibited. Last Christmas men from both sides fraternized and played hotly contested games of football. Officers and men laid aside their arms and watched the players and cheered them on. News of this reached the military authorities and it was decided that football was interfering too much with the business of warfare, aside from the complications arising from too friendly contact between the advance guards. The order was issued forthwith. The men must meet only as enemies.

Yes!

RECRUITS of a battalion detailed for duty in the trenches of Picardy, France, were made to witness sham executions in order to steel their nerves against the sight of blood and death. As a veteran soldier said to them: "Psychologically speaking, the effect of the sham executions was as shocking as though they had been real, for the reason that at the time you really believed them to be real. You'll go into the trenches now hardened to sights of death. And you'll be better soldiers for it. To take the lives of others will be all in a day's work."

These and other incidents that could easily be drawn from the present war show that fear and anger are more psychological in origin than physical. That is, it only needs the minds to control the nerves and the nerve impulses when all thought of fear and anger are cast aside. The emotional feelings and nerve control are so intimately associated that it is extremely difficult to say how they affect each other.

Dr. W. B. Cannon, who has finished a thorough and searching investigation of this subject, says: "The moment you really set out to consider the effect upon the human body of various feelings and emotions you are surprised by the extent to which they have been embodied in our language."

"I was so frightened my hair stood on end," "I was speechless with terror," "He turned pale with anger," "He trembled with emotion," "He broke into a cold sweat"—these and a score of similar expressions show that the external signs of violent mental states are well recognized, but all these manifestations are mainly superficial and therefore observable.

How Does the Body Respond?

There are, however, organs hidden deep in the body which do not reveal so obviously as the structure near or in the skin the disturbances which attend states of intense feeling. How, then, does the internal mechanism of the body respond to the feelings and emotions?

"Let me begin by tracing the physiological connections of the common expression, 'It makes my mouth water.' We have a clear instance of the relation of cause and effect between the discernible anticipation of eating and the stimulation of those glands which secrete the fluid necessary for the digestion of food. Experiment has shown that not only the mouth 'waters' but the stomach, also, and that this 'watering' assists the secretion of the digestive fluids through the whole process."

Now, let us examine the effects of a disagreeable emotion—fear—upon the digestion. That fear or extreme anxiety checks the activity of the salivary glands will be testified to by many speakers who have suffered from stage fright. After opening their mouths to speak or sing their mouths were perfectly dry and their tongues were paralyzed with fear.

A curious but practical application of this strange phenomenon is found in the "ordeal of rice" as it is practiced in India. When several persons are suspected of a certain crime they are each given a mouthful of rice to chew. After chewing it a few minutes they are expected to spit it out. If anyone ejects it dry he is under suspicion. It is taken for granted that the fear of detection had stopped the natural flow of saliva and he is judged guilty.

On the same principle fear can give you a cold sweat or make beads of perspiration appear on your forehead. It excites the nerves and in turn stimulates and opens the glands which bring perspiration to the surface of the skin.

Under violent emotions, such as fear and anger, weak men have performed prodigies of strength, cowardly men prodigies of valor, slow men prodigies of speed.

Dr. Cannon holds this as one of the explanations of war.

Feelings Require Expression.

"The physiological provisions for fierce struggle are found not only in the bodies of the lower animals but also in human beings," he says. "It is only natural to assume that these belligerent feelings require occasional expression. In many respects strenuous athletic rivalries present better than does modern military service the more of the belligerent emotions and instincts so far as their bodily manifestations are concerned are thereby given complete satisfaction."

"I can even go a step further and assert confidently that athletic competitions, and particularly those of an international character, are more efficient in calling into activity the healthful energizing mechanisms of which I have spoken than is the stupid routine of military drill or the machine-cumbered rivalry of warfare."

HANK: AND HIS ANIMAL FRIENDS By Walt McDougall

The Housekeeper's Council Table

Here Is Your First Requirement,
Mrs. Housewife, Make the Home
Summery and 'Comfy' for Everybody

YOUR SUNDAY MENU

BREAKFAST.
Sliced Pineapple.
Fried White Fish. Baked Potatoes.
Buttered Toast. Strawberry Jam.
Coffee, Tea or Milk.

DINNER.
Oxtail Soup.
Roast Beef. Mashed Potatoes.
Browned Carrots. Celery Fritters.
Fruit Salad.
Toasted Crackers. Cheese.
Iced Tea.

SUPPER.
Cold Bouillon.
Chicken Salad. French Fried Potatoes.
Lettuce Salad with Roquefort Dressing.
Maple Mousse.

Browned Carrots—Scrape four or five good sized carrots and cut into three-inch lengths. Cut each slice into strips. Drop into boiling water and simmer until tender. Put a tablespoonful of butter in the frying pan and when very hot add the drained carrots. Drain lightly with salt and pepper and fry until lightly colored. Sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve.

Celery Fritters—Clean and soak a bunch or two of celery according to size. Cut the celery into four-inch lengths and stand in boiling water for about ten minutes. Wipe dry and dip in the batter. Make your batter by stirring together two eggs, a cupful milk, one cupful flour and one teaspoonful baking powder. Fry in a deep pot to a golden brown.

Mocha Torta—Beat five eggs and one cupful sugar to a cream. Add a cupful of sugar, one cupful flour sifted three times, the beaten whites of eggs. Bake in a spring form. When cold remove from the pan and cut through the center. Fill and cover outside with two cupfuls of whipped cream. Flavor with one tablespoonful of coffee essence.

Mrs. S. S.

Maple Mousse—Mix one cupful maple syrup and the yolks of four eggs. Boil for five minutes and stir constantly. Let cool. Next morning add one cupful of whipped cream, beaten stiff, the whites of four eggs beaten well. Freeze without dashing.

A Daisy Luncheon—Not Slang but a Timely Entertainment That Is Particularly Welcome at Present

By DAME CURTSEY.

NOW is the season for a daisy luncheon. These most satisfactory of flowers are blooming in quantities in the country and outskirts of town, and may be had for the plucking. Their lasting quality makes them especially adaptable for decorative purposes. Bank the mantels, fireplace and corners of the room with them; brown earthenware crocks and jars are fine receptacles for this purpose. Fascinating daisies may be made from cardboard and water colors for place cards, or two or three natural ones may be thrust through a plain white card; the lettering done in gold is effective.

A charming centerpiece is made by filling a low glass dish or yellow jar with sand and then planting the daisies and make garlands of them to drop to the corners of the table from the chandelier. The candlesticks should be white, candles of yellow, with shades of yellow trimmed with artificial marguerites. This makes the prettiest table imaginable.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

The menu can be kept nearly all white and yellow; if grapefruit is not procurable, oranges may be served in the same way, or white cherries dipped in powdered sugar; cream of celery soup with the yolk of hard-boiled egg grated over the top; sweet breads with new potatoes, green peas in yellow ramekins or pastry shells with tiny carrot steaks, hot blancet, a fruit salad in banana skin boats, and orange ice with individual sunshine cake. Provide a knot of daisies.

By DOROTHY DOLAN.

THE other day I visited a woman who has a charming home in one of the suburbs. She was elbow-deep in the kitchen taking leaves of bread and cake. She was hot and tired and cross, in the spite of the fact that she was doing her level best to make her children and husband happy. The children came in one by one, and the husband formed the last of the family procession.

In spite of the fact that mother was toiling and awaiting to please them the children were decidedly unhappy because they found no lemonade and cookies awaiting them in the pantry, and the husband saw new-baked bread and cake instead of some refreshing iced tea.

Though there were plenty of verandas and porches on the house, there was not a serving table or a tea cart in sight. There was plenty of sun streaming into the open windows, but very little being done to make the home summery and happy.

In less than an hour's time I made my friend understand it was more important that she keep her family cool and happy during the hot weather than bake a great many loaves of bread and three or four good sized cakes. If this could not be managed in any other way, she should buy her bread or some of it, during the hot weather and make crackers and cookies a good substitute for cake. I next showed her that fruit juices and fruit cups, no less than cold bouillions, make excellent substitutes for hot soups and are easily prepared. Occasionally hot tea or chocolate may be used in the place of steaming soups. Even iced tea and cold lemonade can take the place of hot soups and drinks if used in moderation.

I next pointed out to her how she could save time from her cooking to be used in making the home cool and comfortable by using a great many fruits and vegetables alone or combined as salads in the place of roasts and hot puddings. I suggested that with very little expense one of the large summer verandas could be converted into the family dining-room.

After we had moved the dining-room table and chairs into the new dining-room, we set the table. I finally got her to agree that a tablecloth was to be reserved for dinner. There was nothing to save the lovely polish of her dining-room table except a lace centerpiece and some daisies for the water tumblers. It took plenty of time and strong argument to show her that if she taught the children from the beginning to take care no great harm should come to the dining-room table. Suppose it was scratched a little it would be remedied more readily than worn out nerves saved by heavy family washings. The dining-room was not complete until we had placed a large bouquet of flowers in the center of the table.

I got the promise of the children that they would take over the responsibility of seeing that the centerpiece and the daisies on the tables and stands were watered and replaced by fresh flowers whenever needed.

The tea cart that had found lodging in the garage, because it had outgrown its usefulness, with a small amount of cleaning and polishing was the right thing for the new dining-room. It was a good substitute for the one household at breakfast and luncheon. She could go on with the heavy work indoors.

My friend served breakfast and luncheon here every day with no aid except her pretty mahogany tea-cart. At 5 o'clock it was replenished with a pitcher of lemonade and ice-cream and the plates were piled high with bread and butter sandwiches and cookies. The children and my friend's husband enjoyed their afternoon tea so much that they never stopped to ask how many loaves of bread there were in the kitchen.

The outdoor dining-room was soon the popular room in the house. Because of this fact my friend used the money she was saving for new dining-room chairs for Japanese screens, a swinging lounge and hanging baskets.

My pleasure is heightened by the fact that he is the happy possessor of a motorcycle. It does not take him long to put the car in readiness and you, too, jump on behind and you are speed along for a pleasant afternoon in the park or in the country.

If it is one of the parks for which you are bound you have not neglected to fasten your rackets or your golf sticks to the side of the car.

Just as your legs are beginning to get the cramps and your back is commencing to ache you find yourself at your destination. Nine holes of golf or a few sets of tennis are enough to make you contented with yourself, with the country and, best of all, your sweet-heart.

By this time you are ready to rest. Therefore, you settle down into the grass and enjoy the daisy sandwiches and cakes you both have wrapped and hidden in your coat pockets.

Somehow one always thinks of pink or rose color as being the fitting scheme to be worked out in a girl's room, so in which to pile plenty of country flowers.

At the end of the week she said that this new outdoor dining-room kept them all in such good spirits that they not only ate three meals a day and had an afternoon tea out there, but she intended to do all of her summer's entertaining on this summer porch or on the lawn. How foolish she did not see that a stuffy dining-room was more than useless in summer time!

This summer dining-room naturally brought many changes in the daily menu she had been serving until this time. The hot weather breakfasts were limited to plenty of fruit, a cereal or a dairy piece of fish, all meat except small slices of bacon were tabooed for breakfast.

At noon there was plenty of bread and butter, with delicious jam, a simple salad and buttermilk or plain milk. The supper was no less refreshing because it had plenty of olives and celery. Occasionally there was a cold bouillon and more often a fruit cup or iced tea. The family got all the meat they needed, but more often it was cold meat, a meat salad or a splendid fish that tasted equally good and was no less nourishing. Instead of the rich puddings and cakes of value in winter time, fruit salads and ice cream sherberts were found on the summer dining-room table.

The best part about this dining-room was everybody was getting what they liked and needed. Mother's strength and nerves were being spared and the family expense was kept down considerably.

Mrs. S. S.

Make the Room for a Young Girl Light, Airy and Daintily Inviting

By MME. MAISON.

WHAT a delight it is to be able to assist in planning a room to be occupied by a young girl and how I wish every girl who reads this could have just such a room as I am about to describe in outline. Space forbids giving minute details.

In the first place the woodwork is to be a rich ivory-white, very different from a staring blue-white which one often sees, and the last coat of enamel will be rubbed to a soft finish so it will not be shiny. With this any furniture or coloring will be harmonious. Let us hope that the walls are of hardwood, stained rather dark and so they will make a background for whatever rugs are chosen. Of course the ceiling will be creamy-white no matter whether the walls are plain or with figured paper.

Somehow one always thinks of pink or rose color as being the fitting scheme to be worked out in a girl's room, so let's have the walls in a weel wood rose pattern running right up to the white picture molding. The curtains to be of cream net or arille or dotted Swiss muslin with overdrapes and valance of rose pink sundour.

The furniture may be of mahogany, birch, wicker or any of the cream or pale gray enameled sets with without cane insets. Have one or two single beds, with the latter a guest may be entertained, very few double beds are sold these days in comparison to those of the "new" variety, for one may share the room, but who likes to share a bed even with one's best friend.

I hope there may be a small fireplace with a white enameled mantelpiece and a chaise longue in wicker conveniently placed in the alcove window with a wee table near by. What is cozier than this cheerful cup served in one's room from the distasteful of china and all you need have is good bits of thin bread spread with slices of butter.

Vivian's Heart Chats

A DOZEN or more council members have asked the all-important question whether summertime is not the ideal moment to be wooed and won. I suppose any time two young hearts thrill with life and love is the right moment. Still there is a life and joy to be had in summer rarely found at any other season. This is especially true of the man and woman who are fond of natural pastimes and recreations.

If a young man and girl enjoy mundane pleasures such as theater, dances, formal luncheons and dinners wintertime may be preferable for courting. But if they have the desire to enjoy a courtship "just between themselves" as much joy and as little show as possible then there is nothing equal to the good old summer days.

Think of how many charming pastimes "just you two can enjoy together," all for the asking and by exercising a little ingenuity. Much of the summer's courtship depends on the girl, because she must be prepared for simple recreations. This means she must realize the need of having simple blouses and linen skirts more than elaborate dinner and party gowns.

You are impatiently awaiting your young man and the pleasant time you are going to enjoy together. You are no longer worrying as you once did how to spend your half-holiday on Saturday. Your summer beau looks the part as he appears so neat and prim in his white linen suit and straw hat.

Your pleasure is heightened by the fact that he is the happy possessor of a motorcycle. It does not take him long to put the car in readiness and you, too, jump on behind and you are speed along for a pleasant afternoon in the park or in the country.

If it is one of the parks for which you are bound you have not neglected to fasten your rackets or your golf sticks to the side of the car.

Just as your legs are beginning to get the cramps and your back is commencing to ache you find yourself at your destination. Nine holes of golf or a few sets of tennis are enough to make you contented with yourself, with the country and, best of all, your sweet-heart.

By this time you are ready to rest. Therefore, you settle down into the grass and enjoy the daisy sandwiches and cakes you both have wrapped and hidden in your coat pockets.

A Page of Practical Talks On the Home,
Conducted by Dorothy Dolan

Charming Flower Contest.

A SPRING TIME LOVE TALK.

— was a bachelor and led a lonely life.

He thought he'd go a-courting and find himself a wife.

So he called on — in her humble little out.

And whispered: "You're a —." She cried.

He kissed her on her red —, his heart beat fast and faster.

Said he: "I'll have her for my wife," and so he up and —.

"Now when shall we be married?" She blushed a rosy red!

"Will June the month of — do?"

"Of course it will," he said.

"And gladly on that happy day my wedding dress I'll don."

And never in the future saw my — on."

Their wedding day dawned bright and fair, the — shone.

— tied the knot—he had his — on.

The bridesmaids in pink dresses, two beauties

The maid-of-honor, all in white, — the lovely —.

They all sat at a banquet at exactly —.

The first course was a soup made from —.

Then out upon the evening air all danced — they danced.

The sexton rings right joyously the —.

They hurry to their carriage—the ride comes in a shower.

Away they go as the driver blows a blast on a —.

"I'll — by thy side," said he, "and never stray."

"We always will be happy and drive —."

The blanks are to be filled in with these "flowers."

Sweet William, Black-eyed Susan, Daisy, Forget-me-not, Tulips, Aster,

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

—.

Poses, Bachelor Buttons, Morning Glory, Jack-in-the-Pulpit, Foxgloves, Mignonette, Bouncing Bett, Four O'clock, Ten Weeks' Stock, Canterbury Bell, Trumpet Flower, Live Forever, Caraway.

Correct Addressing.

CHARLEY CHAPLIN'S COMIC CAPERS

Copyright, 1917

